Formula for Settlement of Ethiopian Dispute 'Entirely Unacceptable,' Says Delegation at League Council Session.

EPHONE TALK WITH MUSSOLINI

Ch Premier Tries to Get Him to Withdraw Opposition to Broad Political Conference of Four Countries.

By the Associated Press. NEVA, Aug. 1.—The Italian delegation to the League of Nations council session said today that the formula drafted by the League of Nations and Premier Laval to settle the Ethiopian dispute was "entirely unacceptable." The atmosphere among the Italian delegation was one of "unpleasantness," a spokesman for the delegation said. The text of the formula was indicated to Premier Mussolini and it was understood he did not approve it, with the result that Italy would demand modifications.

Italy's objections were objected particularly to the provision of the formula providing for a political conference of France, Italy and Ethiopia. Eden and Baron Poincaré, chief of cabinet in the Italian ministry of Foreign Affairs, attended the conference this evening at the hotel in an effort to arrive at an agreement of views. The conference, however, was without result and they adjourned to meet later.

Another dead line was set for Sept. 4, when the powers and Ethiopia would be required to report to the League Council.

FIGHTING BARONET DIES AT 96

Col. Sir Benjamin Bromhead, Warrior, Found Flying Tame.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Col. Sir Benjamin Bromhead, 96 years old, died today at his home, Thurlby Hall, Lincoln. Sir Benjamin, one of the oldest baronets in England, fought his way up to the rank of Colonel with British Infantry forces in the Afghan, Sudan, Sikh and Hazara campaigns from 1850 through 1891 and was wounded several times.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 201-205 Kellogg Bldg. WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The most stringent regulations in the history of duck shooting were announced today by R. G. Tugwell, Undersecretary of Agriculture, on the recommendation of Jay N. Darling, chief of the Bureau of Biological Survey. The new regulations provide:

No shooting over baited water or land under any circumstances or at any time. No live decoys may be used. A season strictly limited to 30 consecutive days, with no zoning of this period by states, as was permitted last year. Shooting will be restricted to the hours between 7 a. m. and 4 p. m.

The bag limit has been cut from 12 to 10, and possession is limited to one day's bag of 10 ducks. A three-shell limit on auto-loading and repeating shotguns and the use of shotguns only, not larger than 10-gauge.

Closed Season Considered. The regulations were approved by Tugwell in the absence of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, who still is in the West on a speaking tour. They were given out by Darling, who said that the Bureau of Biological Survey had seriously considered a closed season on ducks for the coming year.

"If we had had money to enforce the law we would have liked to have preserved the whole hatch this season," Darling said. "But prohibition does not go well in this country. We were afraid that an absolutely closed season would break down all restraint and result in more ducks being killed than in a restricted open season."

The 30-day shooting season, applying to geese, brant, jacksnipe and coot, as well as to ducks, will open in Northern States Oct. 21 and will close Nov. 19. In Southern States the season will run from Nov. 20 to Dec. 19.

States in the northern zone are Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Idaho, Utah, Washington, Oregon and Nevada. The southern zone includes New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

To Save 50 Per Cent of Hatch.

Darling estimated that the new rigid restrictions on duck shooting would save about 50 per cent of this year's hatch of ducks, that is 50 per cent over the toll taken by "natural enemies."

"If the ducks come down extremely early as sometimes happens," Darling said, "then there will be no shooting at all. If they come extremely late there will be poor shooting. But if they come in large numbers during the season, then hunters will have no reason to be dissatisfied. It will depend on conditions as to when they begin to move southward."

"Every year for 30 years we have killed more ducks than we have hatched," Darling said. "That can't go on and yet have any ducks left 25 years from now."

Darling put the duck population this year at 24,000,000, which he estimated to be a more optimistic estimate than that of the experts in his bureau. The figure, 24,000,000, was the duck population which in Darling's estimate would cross the Canadian border into this country. Of this number he estimated that hunters in the United States would kill between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 and "natural enemies" and hunters in Mexico would get another 6,000,000.

HOUSE COMMITTEE TABLES BILL FOR MINTING MILL COINS

Says Measure Would Convey Too Much Authority to Treasury.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The administration's bill for the coinage of new half-cent and mill pieces was tabled by the House Coinage Committee today on the grounds it would convey too much authority to the Treasury.

The small money had been proposed by Secretary Morgenthau to facilitate payment of state sales taxes. President Roosevelt himself had suggested designs for the coins. Chairman Somers (Dem.), New York, of the House Committee, said a special subcommittee has been appointed to study the matter further, and "if the Treasury can show a real need for a particular coin, we shall give the matter more consideration."

Somers and his committee objected to the bill because it did not say specifically what coins the Treasury could issue, stating only that new coins of any value between 1 mill and 1 cent could be minted.

Asked if the committee's decision probably meant "we won't have any Chinese coins this session," Somers laughed and nodded.

LIGHT CLOTHING FOR FLYERS WHEN THEY CROSS POLE

Russians, However, to Carry Fur Coats in Plane for Use if Forced Down.

MOSCOW, Aug. 1.—The Russian-American flyers plan to cross the North Pole in summer clothing, Sigmund Levanevsky, pilot of the plane, said today.

He and his two companions are expected to take off as soon as weather reports are favorable. The flyers will take with them fur coats, lined boots, and other Arctic attire, but they do not expect to use them unless forced down. The ship's cabin is heated by the motor exhaust and the temperature is expected to stay near 60.

"We expect to reach San Francisco in three days and nights at the most," said Levanevsky. "During that time we will receive weather reports by radio."

"We probably will have to fly over the Arctic Ocean and the North Atlantic Ocean and adjoining waters. This part of our trip will take 30 hours or more."

"Our short-wave radio guarantees a contact of 4400 miles and, perhaps, up to 5600. We have a receiver to pick up long-wave broadcast."

The chief pilot said he and his crew on July 9 made a trial non-stop flight of 3000 miles in 17½ hours. He said they went from Moscow to Barents Sea to Azov Sea and back to Moscow.

HALF-MONTH DOLE FUNDS GIVEN TO CLEAR WAY FOR JOB RELIEF

Hopkins Makes Partial Allotments to 13 States in View of New Deal.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—A quickening in the trend from doles to work relief jobs was predicted by officials today when Relief Administrator Hopkins allotted direct relief funds to 13 states for the first half of August. Aides in Hopkins' Works Progress Administration said they thought their part of the $4,000,000 works program would be well under way by Aug. 15.

Several states got funds only for special programs, such as transient camps, pending determination of the date when work relief will begin. Hopkins' assistants said many states already had taken over some of the 4,000,000 unemployed now on relief.

Allotments included: Illinois, $4,800,000, including $4,500,000 for general relief during the first half of August; Missouri, $206,445 for special programs only.

ADVISED UTILITY ON 'WHISPERING CAMPAIGN' PLAN

E. P. Cramer Says He Proposed Starting of Rumor That Roosevelt Was in Bad Health.

"ASHAMED" OF ACTIONS NOW

New Jersey Advertising Man Before Senators Denies Charge, Until His Letter Is Shown.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—E. P. Cramer, New Jersey advertising man, told the Senate Lobby Committee today he had suggested months ago that utilities companies start a "whispering campaign" concerning President Roosevelt's health.

Chairman Black of the Senate committee recalled what he termed a recent "whispering campaign" that Mr. Roosevelt was in bad health. It was quickly refuted by widespread press denials from Washington. President Roosevelt himself took cognizance of the campaign.

"Didn't you suggest in March that a whispering campaign be started to convince the nation that the President was insane?" Black asked. "I don't recall," Cramer replied.

"Didn't you suggest that a whispering campaign be started?" "I suggested that as one of the matters that might be considered," Cramer replied.

Anti-New Deal Campaign. Cramer previously had told of suggesting to the Electric Bond & Share Co. a detailed program in an effort to defeat the New Deal. He said the whispering campaign was one of his recommendations, but the program had not been carried out.

He was a surprise witness. He was questioned about a letter he wrote to C. E. Groesbeck, chairman of Electric Bond & Share, suggesting the plan for beating the New Deal.

When Black first asked him about recommending a "whispering campaign" he flatly denied it. He finally admitted it, however, when Black placed in the record a letter Cramer had written to Groesbeck March 28, saying in part:

"I suggest that the officers and directors of the company take the leadership in organization or at least formulating a plan for organizing the security holders of America for the purpose of destroying the New Deal and giving America a sane and honest program in its place."

"Whispering Campaign." Among the subjects he suggested the organization take up was: "A 'whispering campaign' designed to create popular suspicion that the New Deal and especially one New Dealer-in-Chief are either incompetent or insane, discrediting them in the same way that Michaelson (Democratic publicity director in 1932) so successfully discredited Hoover."

Questioned by Black, Cramer agreed there was "no basis" for believing the President was insane, and that he had never seen him. "So far as you know it was false?" Black asked. "I don't know," Cramer replied.

"Had you heard any such statement from any doctor?" "Certainly not."

"You intended it as a pure fabrication?" "I intended it as analogous to the campaign against Hoover."

Cramer agreed his suggestion was a "mistake" and "unsound." "Despicable" Senator Schwellenbach (Dem.), Washington, suggested. "Yes, I don't agree with it at all."

Suggestions Analyzed. Questioning of Cramer developed that he had first outlined his recommendation to Groesbeck in his letter and then had gone to the company offices in New York a month or two ago to talk it over with an assistant of Groesbeck's.

Asked if the company officers—a man named Walker—approved, Cramer said he had agreed it was "a good idea."

"He agreed it was wise not to have the campaign handled by the companies themselves?" "That's right."

"Do you know that every suggestion you made has been followed?" "No."

Black then began to take up the suggestions one by one. The witness agreed he had suggested that Congress investigate the "brain trust." Cramer said he had suggested the idea in the letter, which also was sent to Hugh S. Mugill, head of utilities investors, an organization of utility security holders, but had not discussed it with Walker.

DRASTIC CURTAILMENT OF RELIEF IN MISSOURI

Crossley Announces Closing of Works Projects and Cuts in Direct Aid.

By the Associated Press. JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 1.—The permanent closing of all work relief projects in Missouri, the withdrawal of Federal funds for direct relief except in the major industrial areas, and the drastic curtailment of State and county relief office personnel were announced today by Wallace Crossley, State Relief Administrator.

The Relief Administrator said Missouri had received a Federal grant of only $1,500,000 for direct relief and administration for August, or $500,000 less than the budget request and $500,000 less than was granted last month.

The industrial areas which will be allocated Federal funds for direct relief are St. Louis, St. Louis County, Jackson County, Buchanan County, Greene County, Jasper County and the St. Francois lead belt.

In slicing the Missouri budget request, Crossley said FERA officials in Washington instructed that state funds be used in rural Missouri towns, and that the needs of the farm population had to depend upon the rural rehabilitation division of the resettlement administration.

"Almost overnight the relief situation in Missouri has been changed through orders from Washington, and we earnestly hope the community resourcefulness and seasonal decline in relief necessities will alleviate the situation," Crossley said.

HEAD OF KEELEY INSTITUTE SHOT AND KILLED BY ROBBERS

Dr. J. H. Oughton Fatally Wounded in Office at Dwight, Ill.; Four Holdup Men Flee.

By the Associated Press. DWIGHT, Ill., Aug. 1.—Dr. J. H. Oughton, 50 years old, president of the Keeley Institute, was shot and fatally wounded this afternoon in an attempted holdup by four men. He died shortly afterward.

Dr. Oughton was shot twice in the temple. The holdup men obtained no money; the police reported, but took a box of valuable papers belonging to another physician. Two of the men remained in the institute, a sanitarium for curing habitual liquor drinkers. Dr. Oughton came out of his private office and was shot twice in the temple, police said, when he failed to raise his hands at once, as commanded.

The robbers were reported to have started toward Chicago in a coach with yellow wheels. Witnesses said the car had no license plates.

HOUSE AGAIN BARS 'DEATH SENTENCE' BY 209 TO 155

Rejects Motion to Instruct Its Conferees to Accept Proposal That Roosevelt Favors and Senate Approved in Utility Bill.

FIRST ROLL CALL ON THIS SECTION

Previous Majority Against Abolishing "Unnecessary" Holding Companies Was 70 as Against 54 Today.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Continuing its opposition to President Roosevelt's wishes, the House rejected again today to accept the provision in the utility bill to abolish "unnecessary" holding companies.

This action was taken in rejecting a motion by Chairman Rayburn of the Interstate Commerce Committee to instruct House conferees on the legislation to agree to the action approved by the Senate by a one-vote margin.

The vote against the Rayburn motion was announced as 209 to 155. That was a majority of 54 against. Previously the House rejected the abolition clause by a 79 vote majority. Today was the first time a roll call was taken, however.

Missouri members voted as follows: For accepting abolition of "unnecessary" utility holding companies—Cannon, Nelson, Rompage, Williams, Wood, Zimmerman, all Democrats. Against—Duncan and Jennings, Democrats, and Short, Republican.

Rayburn had said if his motion were rejected "we may not" complete action on the utility bill this session.

Representative Huddleston (Dem.), Alabama, said the issue between the House and Senate bills was "orderly execution or mob murder."

Backs Barring of Outsiders. The House later authorized its conferees to insist that outsiders be excluded from the meetings with a committee of Senators to adjust differences over the legislation. This was done on a motion by Huddleston.

The vote was 183 to 172. Huddleston's motion was directed chiefly at Benjamin Cohen, RFC attorney, who has been attending the conference of Senators to adjust differences over the legislation. This was done on a motion by Huddleston.

Speaker Byrnes overruled a point of order raised against the Huddleston motion by Representative Blanton (Dem.), Texas, with the declaration "the chair holds this House has the right to dictate the conduct of its members in conference."

Urges House to "Break Dam." Speaker Byrnes overruled a point of order against Rayburn's motion, made by Chairman O'Connor of the Rules Committee, which refused to allow a separate record vote on the holding company question when the bill was before the House. That assured a record vote.

O'Connor said he was presenting the point solely to get a rule and establish a precedent.

Reviewing the controversy that has held up conference consideration of difference in the Senate and House bills, Rayburn said the House conferees objected to the presence of outsiders.

"I brought this resolution in now," Rayburn said, "so the dam might be broken. I believe if it is, we can get a bill in two or three weeks. It is only fair and just that the dam be broken and a bill brought out immediately and not delayed into the next campaign."

The chairman said holding company abolition was the one big issue and that if the House voted for his motion "we will have legislation this session, but if you don't, we may not."

Reply by Cooper. Answering Representative Cooper said the House conferees had never had an opportunity to consider the bill. He added that the Senate lobby investigation "is a club over Congress."

"Who did the committee take?" he asked. "The Associated Gas and Electric Co.—the black sheep of all the utility companies the others would not let come in with them." "The Senate committee has not reflections on every member of this

MORGENTHAU DECLINES TO GIVE TAX BILL VIEWS

"Not His Duty" to Pass on Measure, Treasury Head Tells Senate Finance Committee.

ASSERTS RATES ARE UP TO CONGRESS

Harrison Says He 'Can't Recall a Secretary Refusing to Give Opinion' on Such Legislation.

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau declines today to tell the Senate Finance Committee whether the House tax bill disregards President Roosevelt's recommendations, but agreed the Treasury would have to be satisfied with the measure Congress enacted.

After reading a brief prepared statement to the committee warning against new expenditures outside the budget and expressing the hope the revenues from the tax bill would be applied against the deficit of the national debt, Morgenthau was asked his views on the House measure. He consulted his advisers and then said it was not his duty to pass on it, that his views were those outlined in the President's message.

"As long as I'm Secretary of the Treasury, I'm not going to try to write tax bills," he asserted.

Harrison Questions Witness. Chairman Harrison observed he couldn't recall a Treasury Secretary who refused to give his views on tax legislation.

"My views may differ from other Secretaries," Morgenthau replied. Morgenthau was asked pointblank by Harrison whether the House bill "conforms" with recommendations of the President and the Treasury. "You place me in an embarrassing position," Morgenthau said, "when you ask me to analyze the bill before the House." He pleaded that since he had been Secretary he had sought "not to tell Congress what the rates of any tax should be."

"It is not to embarrass you," Harrison insisted, "but to try to avoid embarrassing the President."

Opposes New Expenditures. Morgenthau said ordinary expenditures of the Government were being held within receipts, but that additional revenue, in prospect "which will necessarily fall short of meeting our full needs (including our emergency) does not warrant any additional expenditures outside our budget plans."

"Any such new or additional expenditures," he asserted, "would not conform to the best interests of the national credit."

The prepared statement pointed out he had made a statement to the House Ways and Means Committee including a long list of tax ranges for its consideration. He said the Treasury would make "freely available" to the finance group all data it has gathered on taxation. Morgenthau, concluding his statement, said he wanted "to add an earnest word as to the use to which any additional revenue that the proposed new taxes will produce should be put."

"We have incurred and are incurring large emergency expenditures according to a carefully planned program for the sole object of caring for the urgent needs of our citizens and promoting recovery," he said.

"I hope the Congress will provide that the proceeds of the new taxation you are considering shall be preserved scrupulously for the purpose, first, of reducing the deficit, and, later, of reducing the public debt."

More Questioning by Harrison. Harrison said he was "willing to go along" with the President's wishes, but emphasized there was a marked difference between the President's recommendations on corporation taxes and what the House Ways and Means Committee wrote into the bill.

"It is inconceivable," Harrison said, "that the President would make any recommendation without consulting the Treasury."

Harrison referred specifically to the action of the house in narrowing the corporation tax rate to 13 1/4 per cent, whereas the President had suggested a range of 10% to 16%.

"I want to know," Harrison said, "Is that procedure approved by the President and the Treasury Department?"

"The President's message, I think," Morgenthau replied, "is a very clear-cut, simple statement that anybody can understand. Where the bill in the House varies with that is simple to tell."

An Ear to the Ground Beneath the Sea

THE wireless operator of the Orphir, salvage ship seeking the sunken British liner Lusitania, who is equipped to keep in constant touch with divers many fathoms below him. Salvage Ship Charts Bed Of Ocean Around Big Hulk

Soundings Taken by Echo Device in 1000 Square Yard Area Preparatory to Diving Operations.

By GILBERT McALLISTER.

(Copyright, 1935.)

ABOARD SALVAGE SHIP ORPHIR, Aug. 1.—An area 1000 yards square, within which Capt. Henry Dell Russell is confident the Lusitania lies, was charted yesterday by the echo sounding apparatus of the Orphir. Five trips were made between the north and south borders of the square, and four from east to west.

As the ship traveled slowly across the calm sea, navigating officers took half-minute bearings, while the graph of the echo sounder recorded the outlines of the huge wreck beneath us. Two hundred forty times a minute the line of the graph advanced in abrupt movements. The echoes of the sounder, amplified one and a half million times, found visual expression on the slowly uncoiling graph as they bounded upward from the ocean bottom.

The Receiving Instrument. The echo sounder's receiving apparatus, in the control room, drew a continuous profile picture of the ocean bed over which we passed. This outline even the most unscientific layman can understand.

The electric instrument, about two feet by two feet six inches, is inclosed and appears little more impressive than a large fuse box. When the front is opened, I can see a number of dials, coils, knobs, wires and a sheet of brownish paper, moving slowly downward on a roller. Within this box is a motor which keeps the sheet moving at a constant speed. Over this paper which is moistened and treated with starch iodine, moves a "pen," an instrument which is actually an electric current to which the treated paper is sensitive.

In the form of a sharply defined sepia colored line, the paper records irregular markings which move backward and forward in made in the House bill from the President's message?

"I don't feel it's up to me, as an appointive executive officer, to approve or disapprove any action of Congress."

Estate Taxes Discussed. Morgenthau again avoided a direct reply when asked if he would advocate the inheritance tax schedule based on existing income rates which he proposed at the time the bonus bill was pending. However, he told Harrison the Treasury would favor a "liberal policy" with regard to the 14-year liens on estates pending the payment of the proposed inheritance tax.

Senator King (Dem.) Utah, pointed out the lien and interest pending tax payment would embarrass many estate holders whose investments were in going concerns and scattered over many states because of difficulty in liquidating to pay the inheritance levy.

Robert H. Jackson, counsel for the Internal Revenue Bureau, replying for the Secretary, said 85 per cent of the average estate was in securities, with 14 per cent debts and "if you legislate for generalities instead of particularities there will not be much embarrassment."

Senator Lonergan (Dem.), Connecticut, asked Jackson how a person inheriting a business, valued at harmony with the outline of the ocean floor.

Transmitter in Engine Room. In the ship's engine room is the echo sounder's transmitter. This instrument produces electric sound waves of 16,000 cycles a second, which travel down to the ocean bed and rebound as echoes. Their frequency is so high that they cannot be heard by human ears. These returning waves are picked up by the receiving instrument in the control room. Here they are amplified and passed on to the electric pen, which records them.

In other words continuous streams of abrupt sound waves—130 per minute—are produced by the oscillator in the engine room, shot down to the ocean bed, and are caught by the receiver in the control room as they rebound to the surface. Thus on the brown, sensitized paper we can see continuously mapped out before us a bas-relief of the ocean bed beneath us.

This instrument, which was invented by scientists of the British Admiralty, has been in use for about eight years. Its most successful job before it was placed aboard the Orphir was finding a wreck at the mouth of the River Mersey, near Liverpool.

Better Than Old Method. Whereas the old form of sounding was the slow, laborious method of dropping lead overboard, this echo sounding device silently and effortlessly throws more than a hundred inquisitive waves to the bottom in less than a minute.

When we reached the shelter of Kinsale Cove last night, Capt. Russell and his navigators began correlating the graphs that yesterday's charting had recorded, with those taken Sunday, when the large hulk was first sighted. Their object was to determine through the angular reflections of the ocean bed the exact spot for descent by Chief Diver Jarrett.

$500,000,000 with no debts and all its investments in machinery and buildings, could raise around $400,000,000 to pay the tax without destroying the business. Jackson said there were many ways, including a bond issue.

Senator Byrd (Dem.), Virginia, brought out the deficit for the current fiscal year would be around $4,000,000,000 and said the pending tax bill would raise only 7 per cent of that. Morgenthau agreed the new revenues could not be applied to the national debt "until the budget is balanced."

Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War and speaking for 10 charitable organizations, including the Community Chest, recommended tax exemption for corporation gifts to charity.

Manufacturer Heard. H. W. Prentiss, Armstrong Cork Co., Lancaster, Pa., speaking for the National Association of Manufacturers, attacked the proposed 13 1/4% graduated corporation income taxes.

Since they would raise only an estimated $15,000,000, he said "obviously it is not designed for revenue purposes, but apparently to control or limit or break up and destroy large corporations simply because they are big."

DRAFTERS OF TAX BILL OVERRIDE THE PRESIDENT

House Committee Democrats Decide on Limited Deduction for Corporations' Charitable Gifts.

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Debate on the new $270,000,000 tax bill was begun in the House today.

Democratic leaders were attempting to put the bill through by Saturday night. Republican leaders predicted they would fail.

The Democrats on the House Ways and Means Committee are insisting on exempting corporations' charitable donations from taxation. They also have virtually eliminated the graduated tax on corporation income, desired by President Roosevelt. These actions lent emphasis to authoritative reports that the committee served notice on President Roosevelt recently that they were writing their own tax bill.

The drafters decided to offer an amendment providing for limited income-tax deduction on corporation gifts.

Chairman Doughton, one of the five members who voted against exemption, agreed that the action could not be reconciled with the President's ideas.

Already under way were plans by some liberals to attempt to amend the bill. One group decided to push a move to make the increased surtax apply to all personal incomes of more than $5000, instead of the $50,000 provided in the bill.

Community Chests and Councils, Inc., and Jewish and Catholic charitable organizations issued a statement disagreeing with the President. Allen Burns of the community chests said refusal to permit the deductions would cost charity $20,000,000 annually and take us back to the "barren and buggy days of private charity." He said corporations' gifts comprised about 25 per cent of the fund for charity.

Stairway of Flat Burned; 6 Assisted Down Ladders

Blaze Is Discovered in Row of Frame Garages on Montgomery Street.

Fire of undetermined origin was discovered at 1:25 a. m. today in a row of three frame garages back of the National Provision Co., 2620 Montgomery street. Damage was estimated by firemen at $2000.

The flames destroyed an outside wooden stairway leading to the roof of the flats facing Montgomery street, where Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Flowers and their 19-month-old daughter, Dolores, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Bantle, and their 12-year-old daughter, Margaretta, were sleeping.

Firemen assisted them down ladders and they returned to their living quarters within the building.

House, that's what they've done," he said.

Cooper was booed from the Democratic side when he said "I am not here to defend public utilities."

"That's all right," he answered. "In all my experience in Congress, I've never jeered a member who stood up and spoke his rights."

He was applauded a full minute. He said there were many indefensible holding companies, but "regulation does not mean destruction."

An assertion that the issue between the House and Senate was "orderly execution or mob murder," was made by Representative Huddleston after testimony before the Senate Lobby Committee today of efforts to start a "whispering campaign" about President Roosevelt was read to the House while Rayburn had the floor.

Huddleston asserted he felt the utmost indignation "at the insult against the President," but asked: "Why did the gentleman from Texas have that read at this time? Is it his intention to further inflame public sentiment?"

Huddleston said the abolition section was unconstitutional, would create unemployment, and "take bread out of the mouths of men."

employment of James M. Beck, former United States Solicitor-General, and Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, to oppose the administration program.

Admission Follows Denial. "You knew about that whispering campaign months ago, didn't you?" Black asked. "No," Cramer replied.

"You know you suggested that a whispering campaign be started?" "No."

"You deny that?" "Sure."

Black then produced the letter, which Cramer finally admitted he had written.

Black asked if "not long" after the letter was written Cramer "began to hear a whispering campaign that the President was crazy?" "I sent the letter to Magill in March," Cramer said. "The whispering campaign was only during the last two or three weeks, as I recall it."

Asked of a secret satisfaction that the idea originated in your brain, Cramer said he asked, "I am annoyed and chagrined that I had any connection with it."

"Are you ashamed?" "Certainly."

Cramer added that he was not sure that his letter and the campaign were "cause and effect" but then went on to defend it. "The same was done in '28, '29 and '30 against Hoover," he said.

"Who said he was crazy?" Senator Black asked. "Mr. Mitchellson."

"Do you swear that?" "No," Cramer replied, laughing.

"But I understand that was a 'smear' Hoover campaign, wasn't it?" "No," Senator Mitchellson (Dem.), Indiana, replied. "I think he told the truth."

Meanwhile, delegates from the 14 nations represented on the League Council continued private negotiations.

Premier Laval told representatives of the French press: "We are merely beginning difficult negotiations that may take several days."

A formal Council session, scheduled for late afternoon, was canceled an hour before it was to be called. The cancellation was interpreted as meaning that more time was necessary to negotiate the difficult situation with Mussolini.

Mass Recruiting for Ethiopian Army Begins in Capital.

By the Associated Press.

ADDIS ABABA, Aug. 1.—The fighting men of Ethiopia lined up at recruiting stations here today to augment the army while their women raised war funds. Mass recruiting followed a general meeting of citizens in front of the Ministry of War.

Women met in the palace hall and formed "The Association for the Defense of the Country." They subscribed $30,000 within an hour. Mohammedan women joined their Cramer said he had talked his plan over with G. A. Colt, a friend and W. G. Harding, a chemist, and a few others.

He told the committee the telegram summoning him arrived about 7 o'clock last night and about 9 o'clock he replied he could not come on such short notice. He denied he had meanwhile communicated with Electric Bond and Share Co.

Later, about 1 o'clock, a subpoena was served on him by agents of the committee and they accompanied him to Washington.

He testified his office was in Orange, N. J., in one of the buildings of the Thomas A. Edison Industries, for which he works.

Cramer said he was born 45 years ago in Tiffin, O., and educated at Heidelberg College in Ohio, an institution he described as "operated by the Reformed Church."

He denied he had assisted in preparing advertisements against the Wheeler-Rayburn bill.

At the end of his examination he told the committee he would be "very glad" to let the committee see his correspondence with the utility company. He said he had written the letter on his "personal responsibility," adding: "I would not like to bring any embarrassment on others that I may have brought on myself."

He was dismissed and the committee recessed subject to call.

Cramer's Suggestions. Other suggestions Cramer made in his letter were: "A congressional investigation of the 'brain trust' legislative 'factory' designed to expose to the public resentment."

"To liquidate the bureau including not only the alphabetical species but all commissions."

"Support in 1935 political campaign of presidential and congressional candidates, regardless of

The women elected Princess Shoaraggo their president. Among the leaders is Princess Tsahay, daughter of the Emperor, and Princess Yeshashwork, his niece. Premier Tsahay, educated in Switzerland, speaks English, French and German. Princess Yeshashwork, who has toured many countries, is the wife of Ras Guksa, hereditary Governor of the Province of Tigre, who was sponsor for special Ambassador H. Murray Jacoby of the United States at the coronation of Emperor Haile Selassie.

The action was taken following a war council by the high chiefs of Ethiopia, who were reported to have told Emperor Haile Selassie they thought "it may be too late now to prevent war."

One source said the Emperor was gravely concerned by evidence that tens of thousands of his warriors were eager for open hostilities at once to avenge what they regard as an Italian slur on their kingdom.

Haile Selassie, apparently anxious to do nothing to increase the tension, sternly rebuked some of the leaders who were understood to have urged a breaking off of diplomatic relations with Italy.

The united loyalty of the tribal chiefs was emphasized in a manifesto issued after yesterday's secret session in the palace courtyard, asserting that no mandate of any nation

He suggested also a publicity campaign to "educate" the people to "the similarity between conditions in the United States today and those in Germany prior to the mark (currency) disaster."

Other suggestions were for publicity to show that "the taxes that are paid by people who think they don't pay any," for stabilization of the dollar, and for balancing the budget with a "quick tapering off of Federal work relief and direct relief of all kinds."

Organization's Proposals. Urging development of a widespread organization, Cramer said in the letter: "The acknowledged failure of the 'New Deal' experiments as revealed by the growth in relief rolls and unemployment, and the growing public distrust, as revealed by the lack of popular support to the work relief bill, indicate that the time is at last ripe to organize for effective opposition."

Cramer said that with a well rounded out program for security owners to oppose the "New Deal," who knows but that 10 to 20 million membership and a "war chest" of several times that many dollars could be obtained in 60 to 90 days."

To head an organization of security holders and others opposed to the New Deal, Cramer suggested that officers of Electric Bond & Share "engage an outstanding national figure such as Nicholas Murray Butler, Edwin S. Kemmerer, James M. Beck, or Newton D. Baker, to act as mouthpiece and release publicity emphasizing the need for more practical methods of encouraging business recovery and obligations upon the middle class citizenry to help."

SUSPECT IN WEIRD MURDER MAY HAVE ENDED HIS LIFE

Note Left in Taxicab on Chicago Pier Attributed to Ex-Suitor of Mutilation Victim's Wife.

SAYS 'I'M GOING TO LAKE AND JUMP IN'

Coat Identified by Osteopath's Widow as That of Canton, Mo., Man, Her Former Fiance.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—A suicide note signed "Mandeville" was found today and turned over to police who are seeking Mandeville Zenge, 26 years old, for questioning in the mutilation killing of Walter J. Bauer.

On a coat containing the note were spots which police Capt. John Stege said were "unmistakably blood stains." There were similar stains on a handkerchief found in the breast pocket.

The note was turned over to police by John Giannini, taxicab driver, who found it, he said, in clothing left behind by a passenger he drove to Navy Pier on Lake Michigan, at about 10:45 o'clock last night.

Although the note was addressed to Zenge's father, J. Andy Zenge, of Canton, Mo., and said, "I'm going to end it all," Capt. Stege said he thought it was "a ruse" to throw police off the track.

No Reference to Attack.
The note contained no reference to the attack on Bauer, 38-year-old instructor at the Kirksville (Mo.) College of Osteopathy and Surgery, who was found early yesterday, dying from a mutilating operation.

Bauer on his death bed told of being abducted from Ann Arbor, Mich., where he was attending the University of Michigan Summer School, by a fellow hotel lodger he knew as "E. L. Jones of Chicago."

The note told of Zenge's bitter disappointment when Mrs. Bauer, the former Louise Schaffer of La Grange, Mo., married the osteopath after a seven-year engagement to Zenge.

Giannini, shown a photograph of Zenge supplied by Bauer's widow, said "that's the man."

Mrs. Bauer identified the hat and coat as Zenge's, and after reading the note, sank into the arms of her father, W. J. Schaffer, sobbing: "Poor thing, it looks like he's dead, too."

Police later announced Bauer's widow had "actively identified" the handwriting on the note as that of Zenge.

Assistant State's Attorney Alexander Napoli agreed with Stege's theory that the "suicide" was a fake, but Lieut. Otto Erlanson of the homicide squad expressed belief Zenge had taken his life.

Inquest Continued.
The discovery was reported just after an inquest into Bauer's death was continued until Aug. 15 for further investigation. Bauer's 23-year-old widow failed to provide a clue.

After the inquest, Mrs. Bauer was taken to the State's Attorney's office to amplify her testimony.

Mrs. Bauer was questioned concerning Zenge. "Do you believe Zenge would do such a thing?" asked Coroner J. Frank Walsh.

"I don't know," Mrs. Bauer replied after a pause.

"Was Zenge jealous?" asked the Coroner. "He was very jealous of my husband," she replied.

"Do you have any idea who committed this crime?" "I have no idea," said Mrs. Bauer, "except that I heard what my husband said after he was brought to the hospital."

With Husband Three Hours.
Mrs. Bauer testified that she married Bauer in Kirksville on July 14—"19 days ago"—and was with him three hours before he left for Ann Arbor to take an advanced medical course in the University of Michigan.

She is night superintendent of nurses at Laughlin Hospital, connected with the College of Osteopathy.

"Did Zenge try to get in touch with you after your husband was murdered?" asked Coroner Walsh.

"No," said Mrs. Bauer.

"Did you ever give Zenge reason to believe you loved him?" "Yes, I did."

"Why did you break off so suddenly with Zenge?" "I thought more of the doctor."

"Do you have any knowledge where Zenge might be now?" "No."

Missouri police learned Zenge had expected to marry the nurse on July 17.

"I saw him (Zenge) Tuesday of Wednesday of last week," Mrs. Bauer said. "We talked about things in general. He asked, 'are you happy?' I said I was. He said, 'I hope you'll always be. We had no harsh words and I don't know of any hard feeling between him and my husband.'"

She said she had known Bauer five months. "He left three hours after our marriage," she said. "I've not seen him since then."

She was not asked about letters which Bauer was reported to have told one friend, "My marriage is a hoax."

Note Written in Pencil.

Penciled in a red notebook, the note was dated July 31 and addressed to "Dear Dad," it said.

"I left home because I was so miserably unhappy over losing Louise that I couldn't get along with anyone and was making everyone unhappy at home."

"Thought maybe if I could get up here I could forget. But I can't and I'm going to end it all. Don't let Louise know about this, as I love her."

"I don't want to make her unhappy. I suppose she is better off married to that doctor than she would have been with me."

"She told me before I came up here she was happy and I am glad for her."

"Dad, I guess I have something lacking in me. It seems like I have failed in everything I ever tried to do. However, this is one thing in which I am going to succeed."

"Tell mother, June, Lottie and Aunt Nellie good-bye for me. Also Louise. Oh, I love that girl. There was never and never will be a girl like her."

"Dad, you and mother have been good to me. So have June and Lottie. Dad, I have a $5000 insurance policy in the top left hand drawer of your desk."

"With it you can finish sending June to law school."

"I wish you and mother would enjoy yourselves with the rest of us. Lottie told me several times lately that I was crazy but I am not. I know what I am doing. I'm sorry I can't pay you the money I borrowed from you but you have the car which I hope you will enjoy."

"However, I believe you could use the money better. Tell Lloyd and Ellen good-bye for me."

"I am going to take a cab to the lake and jump in. Will leave this in my coat in the cab and the police or someone will send it to you. Bye, dad."

"Your son, MANDEVILLE."

Thinks Zenge Wrote It.
Capt. Stege said, "I believe Zenge wrote this note because he describes his home."

Giannini's passenger also left a gray hat and a gray coat, fitting the description of clothing the police reported the suspect was wearing.

"I believe these are his clothes," continued Stege. "However, we won't consider him drowned until the body is found. This looks like the same stunt that Marty Durkin pulled a few years ago."

Durkin, a Chicago gangster who shot a Federal agent, left his clothing on a Lake Michigan beach with a suicide note, but was later captured.

Lieut. Van Loomis of the Michigan State police telephoned the authorities here that hotel employees in Ann Arbor had noticed a strong resemblance between a picture of the man sought and the guest who registered as "Jones."

Names Mentioned in Note Are of Zenge's Relatives.

200 TIFF MINERS FORCE SUSPENSION OF STEAM SHOVEL

Demonstration at Mill Near Potosi Where Reserve Was Being Loaded for Processing Plant.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

POTOSI, Mo., Aug. 1.—More than 200 Washington County tiff miners, some of them armed, appeared at the Fountain Farms mill of the National Pigment & Chemical Co. early today and forced the mill to cease operation of a steam shovel which was loading reserve supplies of tiff, preparatory to hauling to the processing mill.

The mass demonstration followed announcement by the company of a $1 increase in the price paid to the miners for tiff, mined on company property, bringing the price to $4.50. The miners are seeking a $2 flit increase.

An attempt to operate the shovel yesterday afternoon was forestalled by a crowd of about 150 men, who dispersed after the shovel was shut down leaving pickets on guard throughout the night.

Deputy Sheriffs Called.

A group of about 30 men remained as observers today outside the fence bordering the mill, about seven miles south of here. Two deputy sheriffs were summoned when the pickets first appeared but were unable to disperse the gathering.

A conference of company officers got under way today to determine whether to attempt to resume operations of the shovel. Some tiff ground in the mill is being processed, ground into a powder.

Appearance of the miners yesterday was the aftermath of a mass meeting last Monday at the company's weighing station at Old Mines.

The miners had assembled there anticipating a reply from company officers on a request two weeks previously for the $2 increase. When the crowd gathered, it was informed no decision had been reached and that the company desired another week to consider the matter.

Some of the miners voiced a determination to strike immediately, but the meeting finally decided to postpone strike action for two weeks, if no tiff was moved from surplus stocks in the meantime.

Action of the company in operating the shovel was construed by the miners as a violation of "an agreement" while the company denied any agreement existed, pointing out the miners' attitude represented their own sentiment at the mass meeting.

Another Meeting Called.
Another miners' mass meeting has been called for Saturday night at Old Mines to decide whether to accept the $1 increase and abandon strike plans or to declare a general strike.

The mass demonstrators today were led by James Wright of St. Louis, an organizer for the American Workers Union. Officers of the National Barytes Association, composed of miners, haulers, some landowners, did not sanction the picketing of the plant, and were engaged in attempting to effect an agreement before the tentative strike date, Aug. 12.

A third labor organization in the county, also represented at the Old Mines meeting, is the Workmen's Benefit Association, an outgrowth of an organization which was active among men on relief in the lead belt in St. Francois County. Many miners belong to all three.

The tiff association, however, is the oldest, organized about two years ago partly to obtain relief for the miners through the NRA—but the proposed tiff miners' code got sidetracked in conferences dealing with the lead code and the miners remained unaffected.

"Labor trouble," as represented by the demonstration today, is almost unheard of in Washington County where labor is on an unsupervised, "piece-work basis," where hand-labor is cheaper than machinery. The miners say that they are unable to live on early incomes averaging about $250 a week and that the increased cost of living has reduced many of their families to dire straits.

Tiff, the common term for barytes, has been mined in Washington County for decades. The county is the center of the tiff mining industry in the United States. From the raw material is made pigments, bases for paint, and many other uses. It is used in the rubber tire industry and for the sealing of oil wells.

WORKERS' UNION MEMBERS ARE RELEASED BY COURT
Judge Rules Demonstration at Relief Headquarters Did Not Constitute Disturbance

Five members of the American Workers' Union who were arrested July 23 when police broke up a demonstration in front of relief headquarters at 2216 Locust street, were freed of peace disturbance charges by Police Judge Simpson yesterday. Police testified the defendants were singing and shouting and refused to disperse, but the Judge ruled that did not constitute a general disturbance.

Those released are: Alfred Ross, 4225W Page boulevard; Catherine Burton, 2703A Lafayette avenue; James and Virginia Otter, Oak avenue, Overland, and Mary Jones, Negro, 812 Whittier street.

The arrests precipitated friction between Relief Administrator Kassius and the St. Louis Welfare Guild, collective bargaining agency of salaried relief workers, which criticized relief officers, charging they "tacitly sanctioned" the use of force to break up the demonstration.

DROWNED IN RIVER

KING EDEN DOLPHY, HIGH SCHOOL PUPIL, 15, DROWNS IN MISSISSIPPI

K. E. Dolphy, 15, with Swimming Party, Sinks 15 Feet From Shore at Foot of Blow St.

King Eden Dolphy, 15 years old, 7127 Minnesota avenue, was drowned in the Mississippi River at the foot of Blow street late yesterday afternoon.

Raymond Ryan, 16, 7401 Minnesota avenue, and Robert Tyra Jr., 19, 221 West Steins street, said that they were swimming with Dolphy when he cried for help. Ryan reached the struggling swimmer, who seized him, forcing Ryan to break the hold when about 15 feet from shore.

Dolphy sank and his companions dived, but were unable to find him. Jack Pleimann, professional diver, was engaged to search for the body.

Dolphy, a student at St. Louis University High School, was the only son of Gerald E. Dolphy, a deputy sheriff attached to Circuit Judge Russell's court. His grandfather, Michael J. McNulty, of the Minnesota avenue address, was for many years superintendent of the old Edgar Zinc Works at the foot of Blow street.

Five members of the American Workers' Union who were arrested July 23 when police broke up a demonstration in front of relief headquarters at 2216 Locust street, were freed of peace disturbance charges by Police Judge Simpson yesterday. Police testified the defendants were singing and shouting and refused to disperse, but the Judge ruled that did not constitute a general disturbance.

Those released are: Alfred Ross, 4225W Page boulevard; Catherine Burton, 2703A Lafayette avenue; James and Virginia Otter, Oak avenue, Overland, and Mary Jones, Negro, 812 Whittier street.

The arrests precipitated friction between Relief Administrator Kassius and the St. Louis Welfare Guild, collective bargaining agency of salaried relief workers, which criticized relief officers, charging they "tacitly sanctioned" the use of force to break up the demonstration.

5 AUTO DEATHS; FARMER KILLED IN HEADON COLLISION

Louis Branneky Jr., 25, of Pattonville, Dies of Skull Fracture — Three Others Injured.

Four persons died of automobile injuries in the St. Louis area today and yesterday. The death on Tuesday of a man injured in an automobile accident was reported to the Coroner yesterday.

The dead
Louis Branneky Jr., 25 years old, Pattonville, St. Louis County, Charles Hatcher, 21, East St. Louis.

Leslie W. Henry, 2, 333 Queen street, Webster Groves.
Thomas Smith, 50, Negro, 3326 Lucas avenue.
Clayton Miller, 35, Negro, 657 1/2 Glendale avenue, Prospect Hill, St. Louis County.

Branneky, a farmer, was killed in a head-on collision between an automobile in which he was a passenger and another machine driven by Dr. E. B. Kenner, 70, of Wentzville, Mo., on St. Charles road shortly before midnight.

Dr. Kenner and William Buttricks, a farmer, of Vinita, Mo., driver of the machine in which Branneky was riding, are in St. Louis County Hospital, suffering from skull injuries, and Dr. Kenner has fractured ribs. Marvin Weselov, a passenger in Buttricks' car, was treated for scalp wounds. The collision occurred on the four-lane highway near Ashby road. Branneky, member of a well-known St. Louis County family, was pronounced dead of a fractured skull at County Hospital.

Death of Motorcyclist
Hatcher was knocked off his motorcycle by an automobile as he turned into U. S. Highway No. 99 from Union Hill road, 10 miles east of East St. Louis, at 8:45 o'clock last night.

Russell Stucker, Highland, Ill., driver of the automobile, said the tail light on the motorcycle was not burning and he did not see Hatcher until too late to stop. Stucker took Hatcher to Christian Welfare Hospital, in East St. Louis, where the latter was pronounced dead of a fractured skull.

Hatcher, an employee of the National Stockyards, resided with his mother at 1708 North Fifth street.

Miller was killed at 11:30 a. m. today when the car he was driving left the road on State Highway No. 77, three-quarters of a mile west of Riverview drive, St. Louis County, and overturned in a ditch. He was killed instantly. Employees of the State Highway Department who witnessed the accident said the car was traveling at the rate of about 60 miles an hour.

Baby Crushed Between Autos.

Leslie Henry was crushed between his father's automobile and another car in the 7300 block of Manchester avenue at noon yesterday. He died an hour later of internal injuries.

Smith died at City Hospital No. 2 Tuesday evening of injuries suffered July 22, when he was knocked down by a truck in the 3400 block of Washington boulevard. Harold A. Smith, 4466 McPherson avenue, the driver, said the Negro walked against the side of the machine.

Georgia Woman Killed in Crash

Near Jerseyville, Ill.
Mrs. Cora Lee Elliott of Augusta, Ga., died at St. Joseph's Hospital, Alton, early today of injuries suffered last night in an automobile accident 10 miles west of Jerseyville, Ill. She was the wife of Neil Elliott, former Alton resident, and had been visiting members of her husband's family at Alton.

With Mrs. Hazel Cole, a sister-in-law, she was returning from Hardin, Ill., to Alton, on State Route No. 35, when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a truck going in the opposite direction and rolled 15 feet down an embankment. Mrs. Cole suffered lacerations. Preceding them in another machine was Mrs. Cole's brother, H. M. Elliott of Alton, who heard the crash and went back to aid in getting the women from the wrecked automobile.

Man Walking on Manchester Road Is Injured by Auto.

Victor Robinson, 337 Atalanta Avenue, Webster Groves, suffered a skull injury when he was knocked down by an automobile while walking on Manchester road, near Sappington road, last night. The driver was E. A. Vogelsang of Maplewood. Miss Martha Dekker, 343 Hillside avenue, St. Louis County, walking with Robinson, was not struck.

Willard Hopper, residing near Jefferson Barracks, suffered a skull injury, and his brother, Ernest, was cut and bruised when their automobile collided head-on with another machine on Lemay Ferry road, near Telegraph road, last night.

REPORTER GOES TO JAIL

Serving 24-Hour Sentence at Miami for Contempt.

By the Associated Press
MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 1—Shannon Cormack, Miami Beach Tribune reporter, began serving a 24-hour sentence in Dade County jail today for contempt.

The sentence was imposed last March by Circuit Judge Jefferson B. Browne of Key West, as the result of a story which the Judge had reflected unfavorably on him. Cormack's appeal to the Supreme Court was unsuccessful.

DEATH FOR YOUTH WHO KILLED PEORIA GIRL

Jury Reaches Verdict in Four Hours—Rejects 'Sex-Crazy' Plea.

By the Associated Press.
PEORIA, Ill., Aug. 1.—Gerald Thompson, 23 years old, was convicted last night of the murder of Mildred Hallmark, 19. The jury fixed electrocution as the penalty. The jury deliberated less than four hours. Judge Joseph E. Daily, in the absence of Ren Thurman, Thompson's attorney, entered a motion for a new trial for the defendant and set Aug. 12 to hear the plea.

Thompson, described by counsel and a few witnesses as a "sex-crazy" youth, appeared bewildered as he sat waiting for the verdict. He remained unshaken during the polling of the jury, reading of the verdict and the Court's motion, but broke down immediately afterward. Tears appeared in his eyes.

The only defense was a plea that Thompson was insane on sex, and counsel sought to show that uncontrollable desires made him irresponsible for his attack on the girl. Thurman made an unsuccessful attempt to read Thompson's diary with its accounts of attacks on other girls. He admitted the truth of the story of the attack on Miss Hallmark as contained in Thompson's signed statement to the police.

URUGUAYAN SENATE VOTES FOR CURRENCY DEPRECIATION

Government Would Take Profit on Peso Under Measure Sent to House.

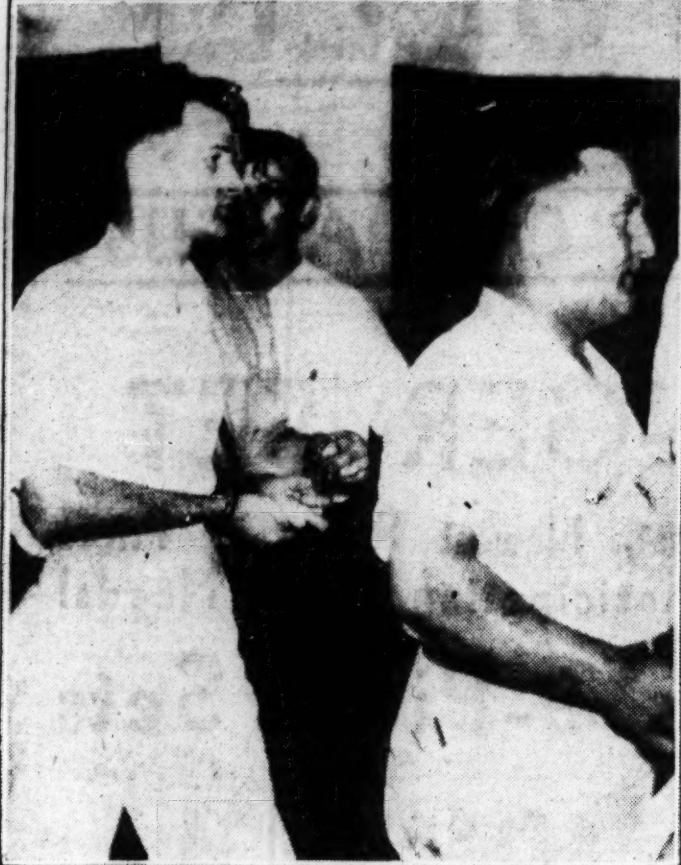

By the Associated Press.
MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Aug. 1.—The Senate today approved and sent to the House a Government bill to revalue the gold stock in the Bank of the Republic of Uruguay in accordance with the present market value of gold and to issue new paper money to replace the bills now in circulation.

The Government estimated such action would result in a Government profit of 48,500,000 pesos, of which 12,000,000 pesos could be used for the Government internal financial operations, with 36,500,000 for public works.

The measure, regarded as controlled inflation, is designed to depreciate the value of the Uruguayan peso, which, at present, is worth about 45 cents, United States currency.

It is expected the House will pass the measure and it will become a law within two weeks.

After Death Sentence at Peoria

GERALD THOMPSON, at left, handcuffed, CONVICTED murderer of Miss Mildred Hallmark being taken back to jail from the courtroom in Peoria, Ill., last night.

GUSTAV LINDENTHAL, BRIDGE BUILDER, DIES

Designer of Spans in New York, Including the Hell Gate, Succumbs at 85.

By the Associated Press.
METUCHEN, N. J., Aug. 1.—Gustav Lindenthal, a bridge builder, who designed and constructed the Hell Gate Bridge in New York, died last night at his home. He was 85 years old.

A native of Austria, he came to this country when 24, and his first job was that of a stonemason. Five years later he had started his career as a builder of bridges in Chicago and Pittsburgh. He built bridges for the Erie Railroad.

His boldness as a designer was evidenced in 1900 by his plans for a bridge over the Hudson at New York—a structure with 14 railroad tracks and a span of 3100 feet involving an outlay of $100,000,000; but the plan, though practicable, was abandoned for a tunnel system between New York and New Jersey more than 20 years later. In the tunnel work, too, Lindenthal had an important part.

Commissioner of Bridges in New York under Mayor Seth Low in 1902 and 1903, he designed the Queensborough and Manhattan bridges over the East River and planned the reconstruction of the old Brooklyn Bridge. His chief work was the Hell Gate Bridge, connecting the Pennsylvania and New York, New Haven & Hartford railroads, a braced steel arch, whose span between towers is 1017 feet and whose top from the surface of the water is 350 feet. It was built out from each shore on the cantilever method; temporary weights being added on the shore side to counterbalance the weight of the projecting portions while building. The completed bridge included three miles of viaducts and a lift bridge over Bronx Kill.

MAN BOUND OVER ON CHARGE OF THREATENING ROOSEVELT

Tennessee Relief Worker Said to Have Hinted at Attack on Presidential Train.

By the Associated Press.
JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Aug. 1.—George A. Boston, 71-year-old Government relief worker, was bound over to the next term of Federal Court here yesterday by United States Commissioner W. R. Repass on a charge of threatening injury to President Roosevelt.

A. W. Calloway testified at a preliminary hearing that Boston entered his secondhand store last November and threatened "to riddle every coach of the President's train with bullets" should it pass through Johnson City.

At the time, Calloway explained, there was talk that President Roosevelt would go through Johnson City on his way to Nashville. He went by another route.

Defense attorneys did not deny the statement attributed to Boston, but argued that it did not constitute a threat against the President himself.

Federal Agent Kills Man at Still

By the Associated Press.
LEESBURG, Va., Aug. 1.—Delmas Duncan was shot and killed yesterday by John Millan, a Federal agent, at a whisky still on Broad Run, about 15 miles southeast of here. Millan said Duncan turned on him and snapped a revolver in his face.

ROOSEVELT JR. AS A TRUCKER

"It's a Swell Job," He Says of Work for Yeast Company.

By the Associated Press.
RELEVILLE, N. J., Aug. 1.—Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., gets up at 5 a. m. to earn his pay as a truck driver for the National Grain Yeast Corporation.

When he isn't driving a truck he is busy in the plant, learning the business under guidance of his elder brother, James Roosevelt. He mixes chemicals in the laboratory, helps out in the sales division and attends conferences. But, best of all, he likes to drive a truck. "It's a swell job," he said. "Get up at the crack of dawn, drive in from Long Island with the sun and deliver yeast to bakers all day. When you quit at 7, you know you've done a day's work. But you've had a lot of fun."

U. S. DISAPPROVAL OF WAR PRAISED BEFORE COMMONS

Foreign Secretary Hoare Applauds
American View in Discussing Italo-Ethiopian Situation.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The United States Government's disapproval of war is welcomed by Great Britain, Sir Samuel Hoare, Foreign Secretary, declared in the House of Commons today.

"It was with the greatest satisfaction, although without surprise," said Sir Samuel, "that I noticed the condemnation by the American Government of any possible recourse to war."

"Throughout this difficult controversy, I have tried to keep the American Government fully informed of the attitude of the British Government and of the gravity with which we regard the issues at stake. We are faced with one of the most complicated and most difficult situations since the World War. A great responsibility is on our shoulders. . . . The Government is fully conscious of our obligations under treaties and the (League) Covenant and steadfastly intends to hold to them."

Sir Herbert Samuel, Liberal leader, told the House of Commons that war between blacks and whites in Africa might hold consequences for the British empire, whose colored subjects outnumber whites 6 to 1. He asserted "Ethiopia must not be thrown to the wolves."

NAMES ON ELECTION PETITIONS COPIED FROM PHONE BOOKS

Man at Headquarters of Ohio Tax Reduction Association Held for Questioning.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 1.—Police raided the headquarters today of what Secretary of State George S. Myers called "the most brazen attempt at corruption of elections I ever encountered." The officers held O. S. Gillette of Columbus for investigation but released eight girls and four boys working for him.

The headquarters was that in which petitions for constitutional amendments sponsored by the Ohio Association for Tax Reduction were being prepared for filing with the Secretary of State. The petitions must be filed by Aug. 8 to win a place on the November election ballot. Myers said more than 12 persons were found engaged in copying names on the petitions from telephone books and city directories.

The petitions called for a vote on three proposed amendments to the Constitution, including one to prohibit the taxing of real estate and personal property and in lieu thereof to provide a gross income tax on income of more than $1200 a year and another to impose a chain store tax of $2 on the first store and double the previous amount for each store over one.

RAILWAY WAGES AND HOURS CRITICISED IN REPORT

15 Pct. of Employees Get 35c an Hour or Less, Eastman Investigators Find.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The assertion there still was opportunity in the railroad industry for adjustment of wages and hours to bring them more nearly in line with standards set for general industry was made today in a report released by Joseph E. Eastman, transportation co-ordinator.

The report, prepared under the direction of Otto S. Beyer, in charge of the labor relations section of the co-ordinator's office, said more than 155,000, or 15 per cent of all railroad employees, were receiving basic rates of 35 cents an hour or less, many of which, were less than the standard set for comparable work in industry under the NRA codes.

More than 110,000, or nearly 14 per cent of all employees, were found to be working more than a 48-hour week.

ITALIAN BOND INTEREST RAISED

Savings Investors Also to Get 5
Per Cent Instead of 4.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Aug. 1.—Holders of the Government's most recent ordinary bond issue, totaling one billion lire ($81,000,000), as well as persons investing in savings accounts will, starting immediately, get 5 per cent interest instead of 4 per cent. The official Gazette announced this today with the publication of two decrees.

The move was interpreted in financial circles as an effort to stimulate bond investments and to increase national cash savings as a result of the ordinary bond issue, announced June 20, was designed to cover partially the deficit for the fiscal year ending June 30, a deficit which was accentuated by the large scale troop movements to East Africa. A recent official estimate showed that Italy already had spent 605,000,000 lire ($48,005,000) in East African preparations.

Cochran Leaves Washington.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Representative John J. Cochran of St. Louis, who is recovering from a serious illness, acting on the advice of his physicians, has left Washington. Physicians complained, it was said, that Cochran was having too many visitors, and urged him to seek some quiet place to complete his recovery. His friends would not say where he was expected to return to Washington in September.

Swims Across Boulder Lake.

By the Associated Press.

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Aug. 1.—Evelyn B. Hoag of Reading, Pa., was the first person to swim the width of Boulder Lake. Friends in a rowboat accompanied the Pennsylvania tourist as she crossed the three-mile-wide lake Tuesday from the Nevada side to the Arizona shore. The time was not recorded.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The House passed today the Senate-approved administration bill to regulate motor vehicle carriers.

Urged for enactment this session, the measure puts both common and contract bus and truck carriers under Interstate Commerce Commission control. Trucks handling agricultural products, fish or newspapers, are excluded, as are private carriers, school buses and the like. The standing vote was announced as 193 to 18. No record vote was taken.

Train Kills Six Track Workers.

WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 1.—A Pennsylvania express train killed six employees working on the tracks three miles south of Wilmington today. The dead: Frank Dillo, Wiebka Schiavereilli, Carmelo Intelsano, Juan Carreno, Frank Catello and Romeo Marsella. The train, drawn by an electric locomotive, was bound for Washington.

SALE OF ASSOCIATED GAS

STOCK IN STATE SUSPENDED

Secretary Brown Bases Order on Testimony at Lobby Investigation.

By the Associated Press.
JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 1.—Acting on testimony in the Senate lobby investigation, Secretary of State Dwight H. Brown has ordered suspension of all permits to sell stocks and bonds of the Associated Gas and Electric System in Missouri.

Brown charged H. C. Hopson, a dominant figure in the system, with "drawing huge profits," while Missouri stockholders were "paid no dividends."

A public hearing, within the next 20 days, will be granted if the companies desire to have the suspension order lifted.

Two subsidiaries—Missouri General Utilities Co., and the Missouri Southern Public Service Co.—operate in Missouri.

"Testimony in the Senate lobby investigation in Washington, D. C.," Brown's order said, "indicates that Harold C. Hopson, one of the controlling directors of your corporation, made profits amounting to more than $2,850,000 during depression years through control of your corporation and affiliated or subsidiary corporations."

"During part of this period . . . your corporation paid no dividends to its Missouri stockholders. In other words, your corporation did not keep the faith with its stockholders."

"In view of these disclosures, I am this day and date marking the blue sky permits . . . suspended."

LOBBYIST TALKED TO H. C. HOPSON ON PHONE SUNDAY

Bernard B. Robinson, Chicago, Associated Gas Agent, Does Not Know Where Chief Was Then.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The House Rules Committee was told today by Bernard B. Robinson of Chicago that he talked by telephone Sunday night with Howard C. Hopson, who is sought by the Senate Lobby Committee for questioning concerning the activities of the Associated Gas & Electric Co.

Robinson, who represented Associated Gas in Washington during the utilities fight, said he did not know where Hopson was when the conversation took place.

"Mr. Hopson is not well. I have been told by physicians that if he ever developed a sore throat, he would choke to death."

Robinson said he had paid Robert Smith, Washington lawyer, $500 to teach him his way around Washington—how to use the Congressional Directory and the like.

Robinson said he gave Smith the $500 "for legal work I would pay better lawyers a lot more money for."

"I was new in Washington," he explained, "and he taught me how to use the Congressional Record, the names of secretaries, the mechanics of the Ways and Means Committee, introduced me to a lot of people and so on."

Asked about "backfire," Chairman O'Connor of the House Committee asked Robinson if advertisements run in Montana papers were not "to backfire against Chairman Wheeler of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee." Robinson insisted his only objective in the advertising was to stir up the copper industry against the utility legislation.

Questioned about Hopson, he said he thought he might be in Scarsdale, N. Y., or Florida. He expressed the opinion Hopson was at some beach. Robinson said he told Hopson not to tell him where he was.

Changing the subject, Robinson said: "It was a very sweet thing the committee did yesterday. An old man being crucified and you whitewashed him."

"You don't mean whitewashed but that we were fair to him," O'Connor said.

The reference was to Representative Patton (Dem.), Texas.

Theorizing on Hopson's Motive.

"If Mr. Hopson gets on the stand he will have no chance," Robinson declared. "I think he is waiting until the story is over and then will come in and clear up the points that have been brought up by unfair questioning and implications against us."

"If you knew where he was would you tell the committee?" Robinson was asked. "Well, I don't believe I would," he replied.

"Then we will ask the question," O'Connor pursued. "Do you know where he was?" "No, I do not," the witness replied.

Sellers Questioned.

E. V. Sellers, NRA employee from Texas and friend of Representative Patton, testified he went voluntarily to Chairman Black of the Senate committee and told about Patton's bringing a box out of the hotel of John W. Carpenter, Texas utility man. Sellers testified before the Senate Committee he did not believe there were cigars in the box, as Patton had insisted.

In the House committee Sellers denied he appeared before the Senate committee in secret session. He testified that because some man he thought was a detective kept following him he wanted to get his story on record.

"Isn't it a fact you smoked cigars out of the box?" Representative Dies (Dem.), Texas, asked. "I did not," he replied.

Sellers was permitted to make a statement concerning his whereabouts between last Sunday and yesterday. The committee yesterday said it couldn't find him. Sellers said he had taken a room at a hotel across town from the one where he and Patton had lived, but kept his former room because he had no money to pay his bill.

Credibility Questioned.

"And you want this committee to believe that by keeping two rooms you weren't trying to avoid being located?" Representative Cox (Dem.), Georgia, asked. "I'd like to make a statement about that," Sellers replied.

"And would you expect anybody to believe it?"

Representative Blanton (Dem.), Texas, remarked that Sellers was a "good man" and added: "I'm a member of this Congress and I insist that he be permitted to make a statement."

"I don't give a damn what he is; take your seat," Cox retorted, rising from his chair and motioning Blanton away.

Representative Sabath (Dem.), Illinois, chairman pro tempore, permitted Sellers to describe his activities briefly.

Representative Dies told the committee that Norris Shook, nephew of Patton, was ready to testify. The committee recessed until tomorrow.

Addis Ababa Is "Ahd-dis Ah-wawa."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Few persons pronounce Addis Ababa, capital of Ethiopia, correctly, says the United States Geographic Board, which officially determines spelling and pronunciation of geographical names. The name is pronounced "Ahd-dis Ah-wawa," with the accent on the first syllable of each word.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 1.—State Fire Marshal Sherman V. Coultas yesterday reported that the fire loss in Illinois for the year ending June 30 was $8,549,703, the lowest since the division of fire prevention was reorganized in 1917.

Of the fire loss reported, $6,808,330 was downtown and $1,741,373 in Chicago. There were no great conflagrations during the year to compare with the Chicago stockyards and State Arsenal fires of 1934. Coultas said 70 persons were convicted of crimes of burning during the year.

BILL IN AUSTRIA WOULD MAKE RACIAL DISCRIMINATION CRIME

Measure Presented to Government With Indorsement of Professors and Judges.

VIENNA, Aug. 1.—Austria today considered passing a law making it a crime to practice racial discrimination such as Germany fosters under the Nazis.

Racial discrimination is mental cruelty and should be punishable with severe sentences, it is stated in the draft of a bill presented to the Austrian Government with the indorsement of many of the country's leading law professors and judges.

The bill is called "menschenschutzesgesetz," or "law for the protection of man." Its author is Prof. Emil Klager, and among its proponents are Prof. George Lelewar, president of the Senate of the Supreme Court; Edmund Helmer, president of the Vienna Provincial Court; Wenzel Reitter, First State Attorney; and Franz Glass, former State Secretary for Justice.

The law proposes punishment for "mental cruelty perpetrated through mockery, scorn, humiliation, or other forms of physical persecution of a human being or a group of human beings on account of his or their descent, race, religion, or social status."

Three Blinded by Gas in Strike.

WINCHESTER, Mass., Aug. 1.—One man was cut in the face and three other persons were blinded temporarily by tear gas fired by officers during a disturbance yesterday at the plant of Beggs & Cobb, leather manufacturers, where 40 workers are on strike. One man was arrested. The attempt of 11 workers to leave the plant precipitated the disturbance. Police endeavored to quell the disorder but the 11 were forced to flee, followed by a barrage of stones.

COTTON TEXTILES OPERATED AT LOSS LAST HALF OF '34

Like Period in '33 Prosperous, Trade Commission Says, After Study Directed by President.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The Trade Commission reported today that all divisions of the cotton textile industry operated at a loss during the last six months of 1934, the latest period for which statistics were available.

The report, based on a study directed by the President, in accordance with the terms by which the general textile strike of last September was terminated, came as the industry awaited recommendations of a special cabinet committee studying conditions in the cotton mills.

A sub-committee is expected to submit its findings on the cotton textile situation this week to the cabinet group—Secretaries Hull, Wallace, Perkins and Roper—and the committee's recommendations probably will be sent to the White House within the next two weeks.

Four Half-Year Periods.

The Trade Commission's report was divided into four half-year periods for 1933 and 1934. The July-December period of 1933 was by far the most prosperous for each branch of the industry, with the exception of the finishers and dyers, the commission found. The rate of return for this period ranged from 4.32 per cent for the commission dyers and finishers to 10.68 per cent for the stock dyers and finishers.

However, the same period in 1934 saw each branch of the industry suffering losses ranging from 22 per cent for the weaving companies to 5.17 per cent for the commission dyers and finishers.

The Commission went into the question of the cotton processing tax, cited by manufacturers at hearings before the Cabinet committee as one of the outstanding factors in the distress of the industry, and reported that, for the four periods, it represented from 11.93 to 12.63 per cent of the total manufacturing cost in the spinning division, although negligible in other divisions which use little or no raw cotton.

Hours and Labor Costs.

In connection with labor's demands for a 30-hour week, the Commission found a reduction in hours from 12 1/2 to 15 per cent in the first and third periods—January-July, 1933, and January-July, 1934—and from 22 1/2 to 28 per cent in the July-December period in the cotton spinning division would have eliminated all profits on sales.

In the cotton weaving division, the Commission found that only in the July-December, 1933 period could the companies have paid labor costs from an hourly reduction without eliminating profits and that, in the combined spinning and weaving companies, only in the one prosperous period could they have carried increased costs from hourly reductions without eliminating profits.

4 STUDENTS TOLD THEY ARE NOT WANTED AT MICHIGAN U.

Members of League That Sponsored Peace Demonstration Get Letters from President Ruthven.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 1.—Four University of Michigan students, members of the National Students' League, have received letters from President Alexander Grant Ruthven of the University, asking them not to re-enter for their junior year.

The students—William Fisch, Newark, N. J.; Leon Ovsiew, Elizabeth, N. J.; Joseph Feldman, New York; and Daniel Cohen, Trenton, N. J.—said they would seek reinstatement.

The letters asked them not to return to school because "it has been proved to be impossible to persuade you to refrain from interfering with the work of the university and the work of other students."

Ruthven later said his action had nothing to do with the fact the four students were members of the league which sponsored a peace demonstration on the campus. According to the students, the League has been active in opposition to war, Fascism and race discrimination. After the peace demonstration, Ruthven issued a statement promising disciplinary action against agitation on the campus.

Army planes searched the coastal area yesterday from Santa Barbara to the Mexican border.

RESTORATION OF 50,000 WAR PENSIONS VOTED

Bill Meaning Outlay of $45,000,000 the First Year Is Sent to President.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The Senate yesterday swept away virtually the last remnant of the Roosevelt economy act in 1933. It passed, 74 to 1, and sent to the White House a bill restoring all benefits to veterans of the Spanish-American war, Boxer rebellion and Philippine insurrection which were in force prior to the economy law. The bill would return about 50,000 pensioners to the rolls at an additional cost the first year estimated by Veterans' Administration officials at $45,000,000.

Senator Hastings (Rep., Delaware) was the only member to vote against the bill. The measure had passed the House unanimously.

Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, proposed a substitute placing limitations on many of the benefits, but it was howled down. Robinson did not say the President would veto the measure, but said his substitute was designed to make enactment of it "certain."

Advocated by President Roosevelt soon after he took office, the economy law removed pensions from thousands who could not trace their disabilities to actual service. It also eliminated other benefits.

Previous congressional acts and presidential orders dug deeply into the $500,000,000 saving provided for in the economy law through restoration of benefits to World War veterans and Government employees.

The last third of the 15 per cent Government pay cut was given back recently.

The principal law re-enacted is that of June 2, 1930, which a committee report said would extend benefits to veterans who served between April 21, 1898, and July 4, 1902, and who could not trace their disabilities to service connection.

The average monthly pensions received by such veterans on June 30, 1934, was $32.17. The bill boosts these to $42.85 and increases widows' pensions by $7.50 a month.

Frank T. Hines, Veterans' Administrator, estimated the bill would increase the pension rolls from 202,012 to 250,600 and raise the cost to $131,200,000 from an existing $85,618,868.

DWARF SAYS HE SHOT BEAUTY PRIZE WINNER

Confesses Attack at Osage, Ia., on Woman Who Spurned His Attention.

By the Associated Press.

OSAGE, Ia., Aug. 1.—Sheriff Charles Kathman said Marshall Bascombe, 27-year-old 45-inch dwarf, admitted yesterday that he was the one who shot and seriously wounded Miss Marie Meggett, 23, a beauty contest winner, here Tuesday night.

Bascombe is in jail. He gave himself up an hour after the shooting, just outside the woman's home.

Miss Meggett, waitress, who won second place in a beauty contest here, lives with Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Tubbs. Mrs. Tubbs said Bascombe began paying attention to her about three weeks ago.

"She wouldn't have dates with me when I asked her," Bascombe said, "and she wouldn't take the things I wanted to give her."

"I went to her house meaning to kill myself so she could see. But when I saw her sitting there, something came over me. I was mad at the whole world. So I shot her instead."

The blimp, with Lieut. Ben May in command and two other officers and two enlisted men aboard, was only a few hundred yards off shore when May heard bullets hit against the ship's metal shell. Lieut. May said many small boats were in the water below and it was impossible to determine the origin of the shots.

Rosendahl ordered the blimp held in its hangar today while officers examined a bullet hole in the port horizontal fin and made a minute inspection of the ship for other signs of damage. If bullets are found they will be kept for ballistics tests, he said, in the event that a suspect is captured. Rosendahl said he probably would enlist the aid of state and local police in an effort to apprehend the sniper.

The first attack on the blimp was made during its first flight across the country after it was completed seven years ago. When it put in at the hangar, Rosendahl said, inspectors found two bullet holes in it.

Two more bullets hit the blimp three years ago during a test flight over New Jersey. One penetrated the metal sheath, and damaged the gas bag, causing a serious loss of helium which officers noted in time to put about and return safely to Lakehurst.

Bush Mentioned As New Manager Of the Indians

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 1.—Although Walter Johnson remained manager of the Cleveland Indians today, baseball fans and sports writers here felt confident his successor will be chosen shortly.

New evidence that the Tribes' owners are considering a replacement came yesterday when General Manager Billy Evans admitted he had been talking "informally" with Owen "Donie" Bush, present manager of the Minneapolis American Association club.

Bush, however, left no room to doubt he will remain the rest of this season at Minneapolis, and this gave rise to a general belief in Cleveland that the Indians may choose someone else as a full-time manager until 1936.

Leading candidate for the fill-in job, and possibly as likely to get it permanently as is Bush, is Steve O'Neill, one of the Indians' present coaches, who was a catcher for Cleveland in 1920 when the Tribe won its only world series championship.

O'Neill's name is almost invariably mentioned whenever fans and experts discuss the managership question, and it is known he is well liked by the club's owners who only a few years ago made him manager of the Toledo American Association team, and then brought him back to Cleveland as coach when they disposed of their interests in the Mud Hens.

Johnson's status with the team will be discussed when the present manager meets with Alva Bieder, president of the club, in Detroit, Saturday or Sunday.

Turner's Golf Tourney.

Gene Harder turned in an 85 score to win the Concordia Turners' golf tournament played over the Crystal Lake Golf Club course.

$225 Refund on Arlington Race

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—A two-year-old filly that had gone to the post only three times, upset the form in the opening race here this afternoon and paid a refund of $225.80 for $2.

Dulcimer, sired by Morvich and owned by J. Van Winkle, started with a slow two-year-old fillies that had never before won a race. She had finished fourth, sixth and eleventh in her previous starts and was given little consideration by the bettors. She stepped the five and one-half furlongs in 1:08.45 before she won the race, back of the track record. Stepanna was second and Blue Alice third.

Dulcimer paid $34.60 to place and $21.80 to show.

BILL M'KECHNIE NOW PRESIDENT OF THE BRAVES; FUCHS RETIRES

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Aug. 1.—Emil Fuchs, colorful president of the Boston Braves for the past 10 years, was forced today to vacate his office to silent and tactful Bill McKechnie, his manager since 1930.

Fuchs tendered his resignation to Adams early this afternoon after announcing he had received word that two last-minute tentative offers for purchase of his holdings had been withdrawn.

Fuchs had until today to regain control of the club by obtaining 9500 shares of stock from Charles F. Adams, his vice-president. He announced yesterday that he was unable to do so and bowed to Adams' "pay up or get out by Aug. 1" ultimatum.

Ironical Change.

The switch that made McKechnie temporary president is an ironical one. Five months ago, when Fuchs coaxed Babe Ruth to Boston, McKechnie, who works under a verbal agreement, was destined to be ousted by the famous home run slugger, who made no secret of his managerial ambitions.

Fuchs hoped that the Babe's presence would solve his financial problems, but they were ill-matched. The blow off came several weeks ago when they exchanged hard names and Ruth retired.

McKechnie's pro tem promotion, however, probably will be of short duration. He will finish the season as manager. Next year, if Adams fails to find a purchaser, Bob Quinn, who sold the Red Sox to Tom Yawkey, probably will be lured from Brooklyn to take over the general management of the Braves. McKechnie will remain under his team manager.

Adams, burdened by his many other interests, which include two professional hockey clubs and the Suffolk Downs race track, is eager to sell his Braves holdings. The 9500 shares he takes over today represent Fuchs' pledged holdings as well as his own minority interests.

He has set a bargain figure for Ford Frick and has urged that the youthful National League president arrange a speedy sale. But baseball clubs are seldom sold in underhand deals. Adams probably will be forced to carry on with it.

He does not believe that any of the prospective purchasers mentioned during the last few weeks means business.

Fuchs intends to resume the practice of law. He makes no secret, however, of his fondness for the secondary baseball and he indicates that he will return to it gladly if an opportunity is presented.

MISS BABCOCK WINS OVER MRS. VAN RYN

EAST HAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 1.—Continuing the brilliant tennis she has shown all week, Carolyn Babcock, Los Angeles star, defeated Mrs. Marjorie Van Ryn of Philadelphia, by 6-0, 6-2 scores today to reach the semifinal round of the Maidstone Club's annual invitation women's tournament.

The coast ace stopped her rival's net attack very effectively with well-controlled passing shots, and out-drove her every time. She won 10 games in a row before Mrs. Van Ryn won her first game, a secondary round of the Santa Monica, Cal., ranked twelfth in the national listings, conquered Mrs. Dorothy Andrus of Stamford, 6-2, 6-3, in another quarterfinal round encounter. Although Mrs. Andrus ranks fourth nationally, the result came as no surprise.

GOODWOOD CUP WON BY TIBENIUS; BENDEX SECOND BY A HEAD

GOODWOOD, England, Aug. 1.—Sir Abe Bailey's Tibenius today won the Goodwood cup by a short head from N. E. Eneigh's Bendex with Bailey's second-string contender, Cecil, third. Only the three horses faced the starter for the long jaunt of about two miles and five furlongs.

The winner was the 2 to 9 betting choice with Bendex held at 5 to 1 and Cecil at 20 to 1.

Everything but Steam Callope As Cards Lose to Reds, by Night

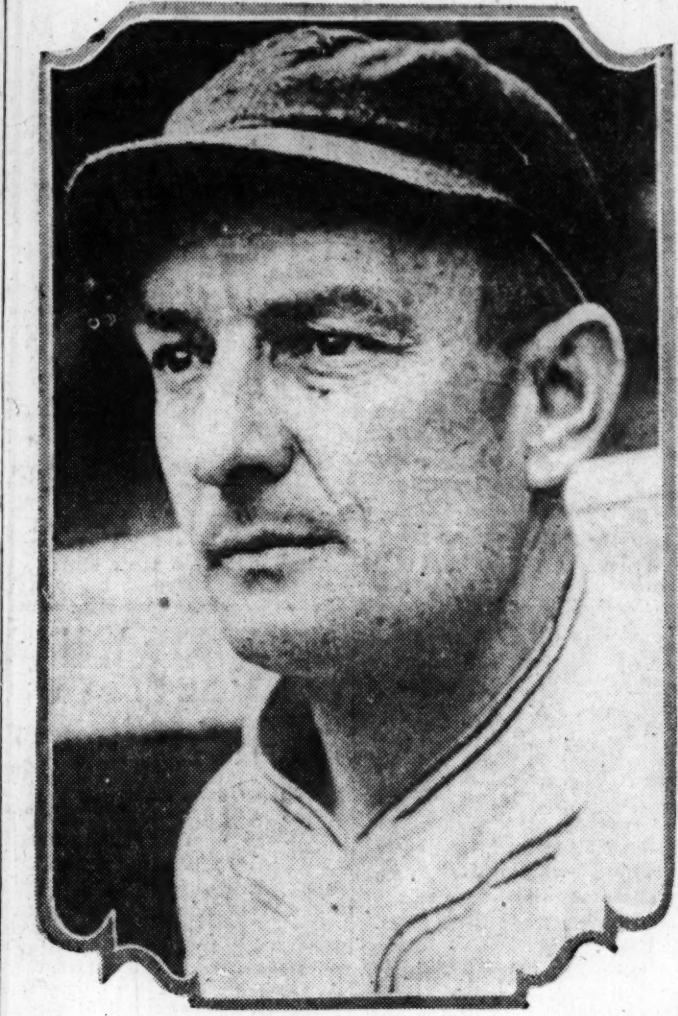

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 1.—Frankie Frisch's men, with their manager back at second base, lost another one in the stretch last night as they made their big league bow under the lights in one of the most farcical county fair carnivals ever inflicted on the baseball public.

The Reds' promotion department did itself proud. The game with the Cardinals was ballyhooed throughout the State and the largest crowd of the National League's night baseball experiment attended. More than 30,000 persons crowded into Cincinnati's small-town baseball park, filling the stands and overflowing onto the field in county fair confusion. The paid attendance was announced officially as 30,001 and about 2000 persons entered through the free gate. The receipts would have been larger, but several hundred persons became indignant when they found out that they couldn't see the ball game and refunds were made, for a time. However, when the stream of indignant cash customers became too long the box office back door was closed and the word was passed that there would be no more refunding.

This news broke as the Cardinals were about to go to bat in the

WRAY'S COLUMN

Baseball's Super-Showman.
LARRY MACPHAIL, of the Reds, is shocking major league baseball circles into a condition approaching wakefulness. For a long time the major leagues have appeared to be asleep on the job. Suggestions in the interest of fans merely made them yawn. Innovation horrified them.

When the winter baseball meeting began Major League heads were still in the "unalterable" frame of mind toward night baseball. Suggestions of improvement to keep fans better informed, to give pay customers as much information as possible, to radio listeners to turn over and snore.

Little by little and bit by bit the MacPhail system is making the sleepers awaken and rub their eyes. They allowed Larry to slip one over when they consented to a tryout of night baseball by the Cincinnati club. They thought he was a bit daffy, and that nothing would come of it. Today they are winking their eyes in amazement, unable to believe the figures they see—105,000 paid admissions in six night games at Cincinnati, a city that ordinarily would not have produced 20,000 for six midweek daylight games. That 105,000 total is approximately as many home fans as the Browns of 1934 drew for their entire home season.

He Gives Them a Show.
LARRY has made night baseball a carnival. When you buy a baseball ticket to a night game in Cincinnati you get a lot of lagniappe along with it—fireworks, bands, a baseball field day, visiting mayors, etc. The evening never drags. It's an occasion, instead of merely a baseball game.

The field day idea probably interests fans. It enables them to settle the ancient dispute about the fastest runner, the best thrower, the longest fungo hitter and other matters pertaining strictly to baseball.

MacPhail has proved such a live wire that it is a wonder the Cardinal organization, which goes in for ticket sales novelties, ever let him get away from Columbus. But it was a mighty fine day for Cincinnati when Larry undertook to help the hopeless Reds out of the Slough of Despond.

Merchandising Baseball.
JUST in case you think baseball is a mere matter of buying, selling, hiring, firing and managing players, or even of winning pennants, we refer you to a pamphlet just issued by the Cardinal Publicity and Promotion Department compiled by G. E. Staples, "Director of Information."
It was compiled in the interest of increasing attendance and promoting publicity among the clubs of the Cardinal organization.
The pamphlet concludes with an appeal to all officials of the Cardinal chain system to contribute ideas which they think may help the sale of tickets.
The ideas and plans now in operation, looking toward this and are set forth in detail and include features that re-

STEPHENS WINS UPSET VICTORY OVER SMITH IN U. CITY TENNIS

Howard Stephens Jr., playing more steadily than his seeded opponent, eliminated Wayne Smith in an upset, three-set match yesterday afternoon in the University City open tennis tournament being held on the Lewis Park courts. Stephens and Smith played nearly two hours before Stephens' greater steadiness from the baseline enabled him to win, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3. It was the longest match of the tournament.

In the other singles match played yesterday, Charles McMillin eliminated Joyce Portnoy, 5-2, 6-1. In doubles play yesterday, MacNeill Smith and Ray Weise were given a battle in the first set of their match with Junior Boehmer and Frank Keaney before winning 10-8, and then played excellently to win the second, 6-1. Wray D. Brown and Karl Hodge, first-seeded pair, had little trouble eliminating Jack Bascom and Ed Miller, 6-1, 6-1.

The second-seeded duo of Charles Barnes and Karl Kammann divided the first two sets of its match with Herbert Weinstock and Joyce Portnoy, winning the first, 7-5, and losing the second, 6-1, before darkness halted the match. The third set will be played this afternoon.

Three singles and a doubles match in addition to the uncompleted doubles contest will be played today.
In the singles, Karl Hodge meets Herbert Weinstock, Junior Boehmer opposes Charles McMillin and Frank Keaney plays MacNeill Smith. In the double, Joe Werner and Howard Stephens Jr. play Wayne Smith and Ward Parker. The first matches will begin at 4 o'clock.

Aubuchons Will Play St. Joe for Legion Honors

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Aug. 1.—The St. Joseph Central High School's American Legion junior baseball team defeated the O'Shaughnessy Post team of Kansas City, 6-5, this afternoon to win the Western Missouri title and the right to play the Aubuchon-Dennison Post team of St. Louis for the State title. The championship game will be played in St. Louis Saturday.

Although St. Joseph's team was out of 10-4 bases on balls enabled it to score four runs in the eighth inning and come from behind to win. Kansas City had scored a run in the seventh and four in the eighth, to lead, 5-2, going into the last half of the eighth, when St. Joseph rallied.

The affair, has been named by the National Association to handle the event.

Riders from Kansas City, Chicago and Omaha, as well as the outstanding cyclists of this vicinity will take part in the event. Professional and amateur climbs will make up the program.

Collins Out Scouting.

Eddie Collins, vice-president and general manager of the Red Sox, is out on a personal scouting trip for pitchers. He is going to look them over in all the big minor leagues.

Auto Lottery a Success.

PRESIDENT ANKENMAN of the Houston club thinks giving autos away as ticket prizes when used frequently is bad, and, in the long run, harmful to baseball.

But he was blown clear out of the argument, when Dallas officials pointed out that, with a tail-end club, the team had played to 50,000 paid admissions in half a season.

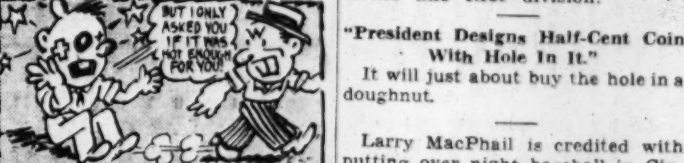

About the only thing not mentioned in Mr. Staples' painstaking pamphlet is a turtle race, with pari-mutuel betting. And if human ingenuity continues to be applied to the sale of Cardinal farm tickets, we still have hopes of seeing this and even more daring ventures find a place in the merchandising of our national game.

What it eventually will do to the venerable old pastime we can't predict. But it doesn't take much of a clairvoyant to envision the future of any enterprise that puts the cart before the horse. You can't long sell baseball tickets as such unless you have baseball and not a merely lottery to sell.

Keep Cool With Barney.

The White Sox tried to work the squeeze play in a pinch, but the Browns turned it into a triple killing in typical Brownie fashion. Looks like first division!

"President Designs Half-Cent Coin With Hole in It."

It will just about buy the hole in a doughnut.

Larry MacPhail is credited with putting over night baseball in Cincinnati, but throwing empty pop bottles was the customer's idea.

It was just a revival of a custom as old as baseball, but which of late years had been falling into a state of innocuous desuetude. The sudden reversion to type cost "Chuck" Drennon fifty bucks, although the chances are that "Chuck" never chucked a bottle in his life.

KANSAS STATE ELEVEN TO WEAR KELLY GREEN INSTEAD OF PURPLE

By the Associated Press.
MANHATTAN, Kan., Aug. 1.—Kelly Green will supplant the traditional purple football jerseys worn by the Kansas State eleven, wearing L. Fry, head coach, has announced.

"Purple is impractical because of the lack of contrast with black and blue jerseys worn by opponents and it's difficult to plan a nice ensemble with purple," Fry went on.

Gold headgear with gold and tan satin panels will complete the ensemble of the well-dressed Aggie player.

$250,000 GATE PREDICTED FOR LOUIS-LEVINSKY FIGHT

CHICAGO GIVEN OUTSIDE CHANCE ON STRENGTH OF FINE CONDITION

By Damon Runyon.
(Copyright, 1935.)

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—They are excited here about the impending Joe Louis-King Levinsky bout, which is to take place next Wednesday night, Aug. 7.

It is expected to draw the second largest gate in Chicago fight history. The largest Chicago gate also stands as the largest in world history for a pugilistic event. It was the $2,658,660 drawn by the second Dempsey-Tunney fight.

It seems doubtful right now if any of the present generation will live to see this gate exceeded, but of course you never can tell. Twenty years ago you would have been asked in the daffy house had you suggested that a prize fight would draw two millions.

A gate of $200,000 net would make the second largest Chicago gate and that's what the optimistic promoters of the Louis-Levinsky battle expect to draw. That would mean about $250,000 gross. The Government and State taxes come "off the top."

Joe Foley, former Chicago sports writer, is the promoter assisted by the redoubtable Michael Strauss Jacobson of the Twentieth Century Club of New York City. M. Strauss is said to be representing the interests of John Roxborough and Julian Black, managers of Joe Louis, with whom the New York promoter has a long contract.

When the match was first made, the general impression seemed to be that it was a mere gallop for Louis, but lately this impression has been changed. Levinsky is getting himself in such good condition, and radiating such confidence, that the boys have commenced to wag their heads as if anything can happen in a prize fight. Which, of course, is true, but very true.

We have told you before that Harry Krakow, otherwise the King, is a most unorthodox fighter, and orthodox fighters are extremely difficult for an orthodox fellow like Louis. Levinsky is on the order of Max Baer. He is a pugilistic wild man. He doesn't know how to fight, as the fancy analysts ring fighting, and he will never learn how, which is just exactly what makes him dangerous for any opponent.

An orthodox fighter, who does the things he is supposed to do in the way he is supposed to do them, is comparatively easy to figure out. But fellows like Baer and Levinsky are always doing the unexpected. They violate all the set theories of the manly art. They just leave punches around, loose and wild, and everything goes with them.

Louis figures to win, of course, is a far better boxer and a far better puncher than Levinsky. He is younger and on the upgrade. He may not knock Levinsky over, but the old King can take a good punch; but he figures to give Levinsky a fine, royal American slapping.

But Louis always will be in danger until the fight is over. Levinsky has had fighters like Jack Sharkey and Mickey Walker on the floor. Anybody that takes a good punch away from him when he is firing is going to get hurt. He puts all his weight behind his outfield throws.

The possibility that the King may land one of his overhanders is one of the things that is creating tremendous interest in the fight here next week. They are even running special trains from all over the Middle West.

May Box Risk Next.
If Joe Louis beats Levinsky handily, his next appearance probably will be in New York, though a Michigan date with old Johnny Risko, the rubbery-blubbey trial horse, is being discussed. It depends largely upon the New York opponent in September.

After New York, Louis may go into Philadelphia to fight for Herman Taylor and Bobby Guinness. It is said they are trying to secure my Loughran for the date, which would mean a nice gate for the City of Brotherly Love. After Philadelphia, Louis may go to the Pacific Coast, possibly Los Angeles, to box a big league opponent there.

Louis' handlers intend to keep him fairly busy throughout the winter. He is the type that needs plenty of fighting to keep him in fighting condition. Moreover, he is still young, and has something to learn, and the only place to educate a young fighter is inside the ropes.

Lasky May Get a Chance.
It is believed now that Louis' New York opponent may be Art Lasky, the Jewish heavyweight out of Minnesota, who was James J. Braddock's stepping stone to the heavyweight title match. However, if Lasky is unavailable, Mike Jacobs has several others in mind, and Louis will draw with almost anyone.

It is said that Louis' handlers are not particularly eager to get a match for Joe with Max Baer this year, believing that Louis can stand a little more experience. They would have taken the Schmeling match, because they think Schmeling's style is made to order for Joe, and they argue that the German's fight against poor old Primo indicates that Schmeling is about all through.

But Baer, they say, is another matter. Baer is young and strong.

fourth inning and several orators among the indignant customers mounted their trusty soap boxes and called for open rebellion. They found eager followers and the mob broke from the side lines and swarmed on to right and center field, stopping the game. The two or three policemen on duty were helpless and the game was held up until a detail of police answered an emergency call. Then some semblance of order was restored, after the umpire threatened to forfeit the contest, but it was only an imitation hail game.

The crowd surged along the foul lines and swelled onto the playing field just beyond first and third base. There was a wall of humanity behind the plate and the players had to fight their way through to get to right and left field. The made doubles by the ground rules. Thousands of beer and soda bottles were strewn about the field and observers frequently remarked that they hoped there would be no close decisions to engage the mob.

Old Carnival Spirit.
The carnival spirit was in the air. In the eighth inning, during a delay while Frisch was being revived after colliding with Terry Moore, a girl left the crowd near home plate, took a bat from one of the Cincinnati players and walked to the plate, insisting on having a turn at bat. Paul Dean obligingly threw one to her, she grounded out and play was resumed.

The Cardinals looked better with Frisch back at second base, and the leader of the world champions is far from being discouraged. "We're not hitting and we have lost nine out of ten games," he said after the game last night. "But we're still only five games out. We can win and I still think we're going to win. We have more batting power than we have shown and we're bound to start hitting. I think I'll try using Orsatti in center field against right-handed pitching for a time."

"As far as this night game was concerned, we lost it because Umpire Stewart, working behind the plate, was afraid to call Riggs out on strikes before that howling mob on the field. Davis tells me a pitch that would have been a third strike was right through the middle of the plate. But Stewart was afraid to raise his right arm. Then Riggs hit a pop double into the crowd. Our club is hustling and fighting all the way, and it's a good ball club. We'll get started on another winning streak and we'll be up there before the race gets much older."

Frisch played a stalwart part in the contest. He beat out an infield hit to drive over the Cardinals' first run. He made a great stop behind second to prevent a Cincinnati run in the third inning. He threw out a runner at the plate in the fifth and added an important spark to the Redbirds' team play. His legs are still a little stiff, but he plans to stay in there and his presence will help. The Cardinals are not a championship team without the "Fordham Flash."

Martin's double into the crowd in left and infield hits by Rothrock and Frisch gave the Cards a run in the third and Medwick's double into the right field crowd, an infield out and Davis' infield hit made the score 2-0 in the sixth.

In the Red sixth, Byrd doubled into the left field crowd, took third and will be fighting for his fistic life when he meets Louis. They think they can afford to wait on Max Adelbert, and it seems to be quite obvious that Max is willing to join in the waiting as long as the weather at Wabash Park remains good.

Max can get more money for fighting Louis than he ever saw in his life, but just at the moment the once glamorous playboy does not seem to be interested in money, or in anything else. Perhaps it is all for the best.

There was a baseball field meet before the game as part of the carnival entertainment. Ival Goodman won the long-distance throwing event. Babe Herman hit the longest fungo, Delancey won the

FLACHMANN ONE OF 201 ENTRANTS IN MUNY SWIM

Charley Flachmann, Big Ten sprint champion, will be among those competing in the twenty-second annual Municipal Athletic Association swimming championships next Thursday night at the Marquette pool. Flachmann is among the 201 entered in the meet this year.

Flachmann holds eight medals as winner of either National A. A. U. or Intercollegiate titles. He was captain of the swim team at the University of Illinois in his freshman and senior years. Furthermore, this spring he anchored for the Lake Shore Athletic Club team which broke the world record for the 300-yard medley relay.

During his Muny campaign in St. Louis, Flachmann has won the 220 and has broken the 440-yard free style mark.

Second to Flachmann in interest is Dave Bartosch, Cleveland High School boy, who is swimming unattached. Bartosch last year was a member of Marquette, but he plans to swim for the Downtown Y. M. C. A. this fall as he is doing a solo week. Bartosch holds two Class B records in the 50 and 100 yard free style, and he also anchored for Marquette in the 200-yard relay last year.

Lillian Sanders, competing for Forest Park Highlands, is another defending champion. Lillian has won the women's 100-yard free style for the past four years and the 50-yard backstroke for the past three years.

Fairgrounds leads the number of entries with 38, followed by Westborough with 34. Then comes Marquette with 25 and the Y. M. H. A. and the Y. M. C. A. with 21, combined. Entries were slow in trickling in, until yesterday when all but 67 poured in.

Preliminaries to the diving in both the men's and women's class will be held next Monday afternoon at Marquette at 5 o'clock.

SNYDER NOW LEADS LEWIS BY 250 POINTS
That huge point total which Jimmy Snyder piled up during the early summer months has all but evaporated and may be dispelled entirely at the closing session of mid-gate auto racing at Edward Walsh Memorial Stadium next Tuesday night, official figures just received by Promoter Earl Relfow from Midwest Association officials reveal.

Jimmy, who enjoyed an advantage of almost a thousand points over his nearest rival at one stage of the summer, now finds his edge over Marshall Lewis, St. Louis, cut to 250 points.

Next week's races will find Cy Drew, who is last on the Midwest Association list with 10 points, behind the wheel of the new four-cylindered speedster, which Bob McCulloch, St. Louis, has designed.

The inter-state standing Jimmy Snyder, 1509; Marshall Lewis, 1261; Rudy Marchese, 1221 1/2; Tony Williams, 1079; Pat Ward, 1079; Harry Quinn, 501; Art Foley, 375; Harold Shaw, 282; Ralph McDaniels, 176; Wally Mitchell, 173 1/2; Jimmy Rogers, 163 1/2; Gale Lower, 158; Curley Runyan, 153 1/2; Les Shelton, 135 1/2; Walter Zale, 98 1/2; Johnny Sawyer, 67 1/2; Floyd Davis, 48; Harry Lewis, 43; Mac McCoy, 28 1/2; Frank Brice, 22 1/2; Pete Abert, 19 1/2; Schenck, 28; Bill Klein, 25 1/2; Ted Hartley, 23; Charles, 20; Harry Meyers, 17 1/2; Ray Campbell, 14; Everett Saylor, 14; Cy Drew, 10.

WILBUR TO BOX FLORIDA CHAMPION
A third inter-state match between a local product and a Florida champion was closed last night when Matchmaker Benny Kessler signed Walter Wilbur, South Side lightweight, to meet Andy Van Bell of Miami, Fla., in his amateur boxing tourney Wednesday night, Aug. 7, at the Coliseum.

In two other inter-state bouts, Jimmy Webb will face Bud Mills, Florida middleweight champion, and Ralph Pugh of Madison, Ill., will mix with Irish Eddie O'Brien, Florida bantamweight monarch.

51 Playground Instructors Here Working Without Pay

By Dent McSkimming.

Fifty-one directors and instructors engaged on St. Louis' public playgrounds are voluntarily working without compensation, it was learned today at the office of Director of Public Recreation Frank Sullivan.

These men and women who instruct boys and girls in athletics and other recreational activities in the city's 31 public playgrounds, have been maintained on the payroll through Federal Emergency Relief Administration grants, but such funds are no longer available.

"I called the directors and instructors into my office Monday and informed them that we no longer had money with which to pay their salaries," said Sullivan. "I told them that there was no definite assurance that the FERA grants for this purpose would be resumed and that the Park Department would therefore have to discontinue their services."

I was agreeably surprised to find that every one of the 51, about half of whom are women, volunteered to continue the work without pay.

"Had they not volunteered to continue, we would have been forced to close seven of our playgrounds and drastically curtail our Fall Festival program upon which they are now working. About 2700 boys and girls engage in this festival and a tremendous amount of preliminary work is necessary to make it a success. The inter-playground track and field championships, to be held on the cricket grounds in Forest Park the afternoon of Aug. 29, are one of the chief features of the festival."

All of the directors and instructors thus affected were on the list rolls before being chosen for playground work, Sullivan said. All had had previous training in this specialty. A permanent staff of 23 is regularly employed by the Department of Public Recreation and is not affected by this withdrawal of support by FERA.

Gipp Memorial To Be Dedicated Next Saturday

By the Associated Press.

LAUREL, Mich., Aug. 1. THE memory of George Gipp, Notre Dame's all-America halfback in 1920, will be honored at his boyhood home here Saturday at the dedication of the George Gipp Memorial Park.

A number of former Notre Dame football stars, including Elmer Layden, present coach and athletic director at Notre Dame, have been invited to the ceremonies.

In the Notre Dame football uniform, Gipp ran wild over college gridirons in 1918-19-20, hailed by coaches and experts of the game as one of the best all-around backfield performers. He died in December of 1920, a victim of pneumonia, after making a brief appearance in the season's last game against Northwestern.

DUTCH TO NEGOTIATE WITH U. S. ON TARIFF

Reciprocal Trade Agreement Between Two Countries
Object of Talks.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The United States and the Netherlands arranged to open formal negotiations today for a reciprocal trade agreement. Trade experts have agreed on basic policies involved in the negotiations in preliminary discussions in progress since last December.

The negotiations on the part of the Netherlands will be carried on by a commission of three experts from the Dutch Foreign Office and Colonial Ministry.

President Roosevelt conferred yesterday with State Department officials on speeding up reciprocal trade agreements with other nations. Assistant Secretary of State Sawyer said afterward the negotiations would be pressed "just as fast as possible." He added it was hoped that negotiations with Canada could be opened soon.

The United States already has negotiated tariff agreements with eight countries and preliminary negotiations are in progress with 12 others.

It was understood the Dutch have requested that favorable consideration be given nearly 50 products of the Netherlands and its tropical colonies. They were said to be especially hopeful of getting reduced duties on wrapped tobacco and cheese.

American negotiators were said to be interested in obtaining reductions in the duty on a list of manufactured articles and in having existing restrictions and quotas on cotton, grain and other agricultural products eliminated or liberalized.

American exports to the Netherlands, Surinam, and the Dutch East Indies in 1929 amounted to $199,009,133, but by 1933 had dropped to $66,305,300. Dutch shipments to this country, which totaled $231,913,451 in 1929 dropped to $71,787,541 in 1933.

The chief American exports to the Netherlands and its colonies are cotton, refined petroleum products, lard, leaf tobacco, apples, gum spirits of turpentine, tin plate, oil well and refinery machinery, tubular products and fittings, wheat flour, corn meal, cotton cloth and pork products.

From the Netherlands and its possessions the United States buys chiefly rubber, fuel oil, palm oil, ammonium sulphate, wrapper tobacco, cheese, tin, sago, tapioca, cut diamonds, steel and bauxite.

RIVER MEMORIAL FUND RULING BEFORE SEPT. 10

PWA Official Says Application Will Be Acted on in Time For Bond Election.

A decision on the application for a $22,015,000 PWA grant for construction of the river-front memorial to Thomas Jefferson and the development of the West will be forthcoming before the special election of Sept. 10 on a $7,500,000 city bond issue for the site, Horatio B. Hackett, assistant PWA administrator, told reporters here today.

Hackett, right-hand man to Administrator Ickes, indicated that there were difficulties in the way of the grant, which was requested by the United States Territorial Expansion Memorial Commission. He pointed out that the PWA could not grant more than 45 per cent of the total cost, including land. Forty-five per cent of the present estimated total cost of the memorial would be about $13,280,000.

Chairman Reidy of the aldermanic Ways and Means Committee has announced that he would introduce and press a bill to repeal the bond election ordinance, unless the PWA announced an allotment before the election.

Suggestion by Hackett. Hackett suggested that the memorial plan might be worked out jointly through the PWA and the new Works Progress Administration, which may pay 100 per cent of the cost of some undertakings, mostly smaller works.

"The project must be studied," Hackett continued. "It is quite possible a great part of the work could be done within the next year (the period the public works funds were intended to cover). It might take an act of Congress to provide for the memorial buildings desired, as part of a national park, and for their upkeep. Neither the PWA nor the WPA could maintain the place."

Asks About Railroad Tracks. Hackett asked reporters whether St. Louis would tolerate the present plan for the memorial, leaving the elevated railroad tracks on the river front at the edge of the memorial. He was told the point had had little discussion. Others in his party pointed out that the limitation of costs of PWA undertakings, with relation to volume of employment, might serve to prevent approval of the memorial grant because of the comparatively high land cost in the total cost.

Accompanied by directors of four national divisions of the PWA and a secretary, Hackett arrived in Indianapolis, and departed this afternoon for Topeka. The party is making a 10,000-mile flight over the country to survey the new decentralized PWA offices and stimulate applications for PWA assistance from local communities.

Mayor Dickmann was among their escorts here. The party was shown the new "Negro" hospital, Neighborhood Gardens, Municipal Auditorium and the river front. Cost Limit Rule Explained. Michael W. Straus, PWA director of public relations, accompanying Hackett, explained the rule limiting cost of public works to somewhere between $112 and $140 per man employed annually. This limitation, he said, applied only to the grant portion of the cost, not to the 55 per cent to be supplied by local funds. In the aggregate, therefore, the cost could be considerably more per man; in other words, heavy structure requiring much material, could be erected, if land cost was not excessive.

William M. Spann, acting State director of the PWA, said that only 51 applications for works to cost a total of $36,000,000 have been filed. Spann expressed disappointment at the small number of formal applications reaching the office in view of the inventory of prospective applications submitted in February to Administrator Harold Ickes, at which 884 projects were proposed at a cost of $379,000,000.

In discussing the small number of applications being received, Spann said it was his opinion that the main reason for delay in filing applications with the PWA was due to the confusion that exists as to the types of projects that are to be financed by the Works Progress Administration and the types that are to be financed by the Public Works Administration.

Yorktown, N. Y., Residents Complain of Visitors' Dress.
By the Associated Press.
PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Aug. 1.—The abbreviated attire of some young men and women spending their vacation at Lake Mohogah in bad for business, it was testified today before the Yorktown Town Board when property owners and business men sought to have the violators of local "decency" ordinances punished.

Mrs. A. L. Shogut said that visitors coming to the community to live had been so unfavorably impressed by the conduct and attire of some young men and women, not permanent residents, that they immediately changed their plans. The situation caused distress to estate and home owners, she said, destroyed the business of merchants and deprived the town of needed revenue.

Joe Mele, were fined $100 today by Police Judge Vest when they pleaded guilty. Detectives reported a purchase of whisky from them at 910 North Thirteenth street. They were placed on parole.

Frank Palazzo, 1807 Carr street, and Walter Bryant, 1610 Franklin avenue, also were fined $100 each for selling liquor without a city license. They appealed.

Forest Whittier Wounded; Bernard H. Schulte Says He Fired Toward Ground.

Forest Whittier, 15 years old, 1315A Ohio avenue, was shot in the right thigh this morning by Bernard H. Schulte, a watchman for the Terminal Railroad. Schulte told police he fired toward the ground to frighten boys at a railroad tower in the Jefferson avenue yards. The bullet apparently glanced off a rail, and wounded Whittier.

The boy, who is in City Hospital, is the son of Mrs. Minerva Whittier.

BOY HELD FOR KILLING FATHER

Says Parent Had Threatened to Run Family Out of Home.

FLORENCE, S. C., Aug. 1.—William Flowers, 13-year-old farm boy, was arrested last night charged with shooting and killing his father, Lacey L. Flowers, 38, as the father sat on the front porch of his home in the Winona community. A full load of buckshot struck Flowers in the back. The boy said his father had threatened to run the family—his wife and their eight sons and daughters—out of the home.

6 MONTHS' TIME TO SUE ON GOLD IS PUT IN BILL

Senate Committee Approves Measure With McAdoo Amendment Permitting Filing Period.

ORIGINAL PROPOSAL
BARRED ANY ACTIONS

It Was Passed by House With Provisions Against Attempts to Recover From Government.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The Senate Banking Committee reported favorably yesterday a bill permitting filing for six months of suits against the Government for losses sustained by devaluation of the dollar.

The original measure as passed by the House contained the administration-sponsored provisions forbidding suits for damages because of the Government's refusal to pay gold obligations in its bonds and because of the slash in the gold content of the dollar. The Senate committee, however, adopted an amendment by Senator McAdoo (Dem., California), allowing suits within six months after enactment of the bill by anyone showing actual damage from invalidation of the gold clause.

The McAdoo amendment was accepted by the committee, 12 to 5, one Senator withholding his vote. On final approval of the bill, however, one Senator switched to the opposition, making the vote for the measure 11 to 7.

Vote on Final Approval.

It was understood those voting for final approval were Senators Fletcher (Dem., Florida); Wagner (Dem., New York); Barkley (Dem., Kentucky); Coddigan (Dem., Colorado); Reynolds (Dem., North Carolina); Byrnes (Dem., South Carolina); Bankhead (Dem., Alabama); McAdoo (Dem., California); Macdonald (Dem., Connecticut); Radcliffe (Dem., Maryland); Norbeck (Dem., South Dakota). Senators reported opposed to the bill were Glass (Dem., Virginia); Buckley (Dem., Ohio); Gore (Dem., Oklahoma); Adams, Townsend (Rep., Delaware); Carey (Rep., Wyoming); Steiwer (Rep., Oregon).

Earlier in the session the committee rejected, 11 to 4, a proposal by Senators Gore and Adams to permit suits on any gold obligation for six months after maturity of any issue, regardless of the year. Adams said the measure as reported out was discriminatory, basing this on his interpretation of the McAdoo amendment as permitting recovery suits only by holders of obligations that had matured. His view was understood to be shared by several others, and even McAdoo agreed it might be subject to change on the floor.

The McAdoo Amendment.

The House bill not only barred future suits, but pending ones as well. The McAdoo amendment sought to validate all present actions and permit suits for six months after enactment to recover: "Upon any gold-clause securities of the United States or for interest thereon, or upon any coin or currency of the United States, or upon any claim or demand arising out of any surrender, requisition seizure or acquisition of any such coin or currency or of any gold or silver and involving the effect or validity of any change in the metallic content of the dollar or other regulation of the value of money."

The McAdoo revision retained the provision for holders of gold obligations to redeem them immediately, "dollar for dollar" of face value, regardless of maturity date.

Railroad Appeals Decision to Pay Bond Interest at Gold Rate.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—The Southern Pacific Co. appealed yesterday to the Ninth Federal Circuit Court here from a decision which would require it to pay interest on an issue of gold bonds in the underpaid money of gold standard countries. Attorneys for the company said the case involved the status of millions of dollars of other gold clause bonds issued in the United States.

Federal District Judge Walter Lindley recently held that Miss A. McAdoo, a holder of one of the bonds, was entitled to payments of interest and principal, when demanded, in guilders of Holland, francs of Switzerland or France, or money of other designated gold standard countries.

SOVIET HONORS FOR 55 DEAD
IN SUBMARINE DISASTER

Mass Funeral Service to Be Held at Kronstadt; Pensions to Be Paid Families of Victims.

MOSCOW, Aug. 1.—A brief official announcement early today disclosed the loss of 55 lives in the sinking of the Russian submarine B-3 in the Gulf of Finland July 25. The B-3, while taking part in Baltic fleet maneuvers, rose from deep water and smashed into a surface vessel. Water poured through a hole in the submarine's side and it sank immediately.

"All aboard the submarine perished," said the official statement. Seven cadets, eight officers and 40 seamen were on the list of victims made public. Commander Alexander Golodnoff was in charge of the submarine.

The Russian fleet has been engaged in war maneuvers for several weeks.

The Government announced that 10,000 rubles would be granted to the family of each victim, and that pensions would be paid.

A mass funeral at Kronstadt, where many of the students were attending naval school, is being arranged. Measures have been taken to raise the hull, according to the Tass (official) News Agency.

The submarine was of the old "Bore" type, built in 1917 toward the end of Russia's participation in the World War.

HOW MAYOR BANGS
SPENDS TIME IN JAIL

Dictates to Stenographer Who Calls Daily and Directs Municipal Power Fight.

HUNTINGTON, Ind., Aug. 1.—While the Mayor is in jail, Huntington municipal officials and employees are being put to some inconvenience.

Miss Leona Fansler, stenographer to Mayor Clare W. Bangs, calls at the jail each day and the Mayor dictates information to be relayed to his department heads.

Meanwhile, Bangs, whose stage case has been reported heretofore in these dispatches, went to jail May 3 rather than post $2000 bond pending appeal from a contempt conviction. He shows no signs of changing his mind. City Councilmen have said they would like to have him out for conferences on the municipality's 1936 budget, but he tells them they know where to find him.

The Mayor, bitter opponent of the Northern Indiana Power Co., was jailed when he refused to pay damages alleged to have been caused by the utility by the extension of municipal power plant lines to its customers. The utility charged he violated a temporary restraining order granted in Circuit Court to protect its claim of sole right to distribute electricity in Huntington through a permit from the State Public Service Commission.

While the Mayor was engaged in organizing his municipal electric program he dodged court summonses and department heads wasted hours hunting him. Now, as he says, they know where to find him.

The Mayor has ample time now to consider new moves in his fight against the power company and to study reports from minor officials. Salesmen, job seekers and other vexatious to public officials are barred from the jail office, but city officials may confer with the Mayor at will.

After his daily talk with Miss Fansler, the Mayor returns to the cell room to share with other prisoners what recreation the institution affords.

Fellow prisoners say that since his incarceration Bangs has learned the difference between a straight and a royal flush, a distinction he admits he was unaware of prior to last May.

Orders Placed on Pega. Written orders for electrical construction, which is continuing despite the Mayor's incarceration, are prepared by him in jail and taken to the City Hall, where they are placed on pegs. There city linemen, responsible only to the Mayor, find them and proceed with the work.

This system has been found most effective in preventing other department heads from becoming entangled in the maze of contempt and injunction proceedings instigated by the power company.

Since the Mayor has gained freedom from routine office duties, activities of the city electrical construction force have been more extensive than at any time since Jan. 1 when the first private home was connected with the municipal plant. Recently the 500th consumer was added to the city plant lines.

Bangs is not under surveillance during conferences with his secretary and his aids. Also he has been spared humble chores assigned to other prisoners. He makes up his own bed—that is all.

A striking improvement in the Mayor's physical condition has dulled resentment of followers, some of whom paraded and threatened a delivery when he first went to jail.

50 Reported on Hunger Strike. JERUSALEM, Aug. 1.—(Palmer Agency.)—Because they believe the wearing of prison clothes is degrading to them as political prisoners, 50 Communists in the jails of Palestine have gone on a hunger strike, said an official communique issued today by the Palestine Government. It was issued in reply to protests against harsh treatment and to country-wide agitation on behalf of the hunger-strikers, some of whom have gone without food for 15 days.

HITLER'S GUARDS ISSUE WARNING TO STEEL HELMETS

Veterans Denounced for Not Falling in Line With Nazis, and Accused of "Helping Jews."

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler's "Black Corps," the Schutz Staffeln, delivered a warning to "state enemies" today that the Nazi guards must be reckoned with in the event of a showdown.

The blackcoats, picked to protect the Nazi party and the person of Der Fuehrer, left no doubt of their loyalty in the warning, directed chiefly at the Stahlhelm (Steel Helmet) veterans' organization.

The admonition, issued through the Schutz Staffeln organ, Black Corps, and reproduced by Hitler's newspaper, Volkischer Beobachter, followed orders by Count von Helldorf, Berlin's new police president, for his men to hold themselves ready for eventualities all this week.

Some observers expressed a belief that an economic crisis lay behind the drive on "state enemies," designed possibly to forestall any trouble with the ranks of Hitler's own followers.

Unpleasantness Over Prices. While Nazi officials have admitted that opposition to their administration existed—although insisting the party would muster a majority of more than 90 per cent if Hitler went to the polls—suppressed uneasiness persisted among merchants and housewives over the food scarcity and rising prices.

Berlin's dry goods stores have been jammed daily with bargain seekers, with clearance sales in full swing. Two such sales are permitted annually by Nazis, and housewives are rushing to lay in supplies.

Food prices are mounting. Eggs sell in Berlin at the equivalent of 72 cents a dozen and butter at 64 cents a pound. The late arrival of summer weather ruined fruit and vegetable crops, and some prices have almost doubled within a few weeks.

The uneasiness was reflected in a growing demand for metal money instead of paper. Merchants gave evidence of a disinclination to accept bills of high denominations.

"Must Put Up With It." The Black Corps, in its article, demanded: "Steel Helmets, where are you going?"

"Whoever shows he cannot or perhaps will not harmonize with the movement, in even the smallest things, must put up with it when the state takes measures against him which it must take in the interests of general well-being," the statement said. "For many reasons, it would be deeply regretted if the Steel Helmets, by their own fault, should come to a dishonorable end."

The Schutz Staffeln said National Socialism had been bitterly disappointed by the veterans after giving them two years to fall into line with Nazism. It further accused the Steel Helmet men of "helping Jews" and having leaders of Jewish descent and leaders who are Free Masons.

Hitler was at his home in the Bavarian Mountains, Gen. Goering, Air Minister and Premier of Prussia, also was absent from Berlin.

Anti-Jewish Campaign. The campaign against Jews and "political Catholicism" persisted, Continued on Page 4, Column 4.

NOTED GERMAN LEADER DIES

Adolf Damaschke Advocate of Single Tax.

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—Adolf Damaschke, noted advocate of a single tax system, died yesterday. He was 69 years old.

Damaschke was nominated in 1931 as Germany's choice for the Nobel peace prize, won posthumously that year by Eric Axel Karlfeldt, the Swedish poet. He was mentioned as a Presidential candidate in Germany in 1919 and 1920.

William Pieck, German member of the Executive Committee of the Communist Congress, said in a signed article that Germany, Poland and Japan "no longer make secret their war plans against the Soviet Union and are thus instigating a new world war."

If he succeeded, he asserted, "then the result of this war will be revolution."

$5,000,000 WORK
RELIEF FUND FOR
CHECKUP ON TAXES

Roosevelt Allots Money for Study of Small Income Returns and Survey of Liquor Levies.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—President Roosevelt has allotted $5,125,000 of work relief funds to the Treasury Department for a campaign to tighten up on tax collections.

Included will be a checkup on income tax returns of the "little fellow" and a drive against evaders of liquor taxes. White collar jobs will be employed in the work. Officials said they hoped the studies would bring increased tax revenues.

The largest allotment was $2,448,290 for a survey of delinquent taxes and "nuisance" tax collections in 20 large cities. The Bureau of Internal Revenue received $1,577,894 to check the small income tax returns and $1,086,941 for the study of retail liquor tax evasions.

Two other projects also received funds, the Census Bureau getting allotments of $1,804,948 for an alphabetical index of the 1930 census and $293,000 to ascertain any improvement in retail trade during the last two years. The census index is to be used in the Government's old age pension program.

Corryn Gill, Assistant Works Progress Administrator, announced that a large number of other surveys would be carried out to provide additional white collar jobs, and that a clearing house had been set up to prevent duplication of activities.

Comment on Tax Checkup. Commenting on the income tax checkup, Treasury officials said that in recent years revenue agents had been able to examine only 350,000 of the 700,000 returns sent to them for study. Those examined have been returns of larger taxpayers. Now the small taxpayer will be checked. About 1000 persons will be employed on the new job.

Declaring that the liquor tax checkup would more than pay for itself in extra collections, officials said surveys in 10 large cities had shown "extensive evasions," while "certain stores were being used as outlets for bootleg liquor." The inquiry will be made in 90 cities of more than 100,000 population. Work will be necessary in dry states because of beer, malt and medicinal liquor sales, officials added.

The President decided to make St. Louis the headquarters for indexing the 1930 census.

From 100 to 500 persons, mostly drawn from Philadelphia relief rolls, will tabulate the replies as to how 280,000 retail business houses found conditions in June of 1933, 1934 and 1935. The study will be made by other relief workers in 17 large cities and in 258 towns of 2500 to 10,000 population.

The President also allotted $1,398,858 to Georgia and $152,792 to Alabama as part of their Works Progress Administration's program.

Missouri Allotments. The allotment for an income-tax survey in Missouri is $55,164; in Central and Southern Illinois, $2784. The allotment for a delinquent tax survey in the First Missouri District is $80,394; Sixth Missouri, $11,918.

The trade survey allotment for Missouri is $4211.

For the check on retail liquor dealers in Kansas City and St. Louis the allocation is $29,128.

Reporting that 40 per cent of all relief families are in rural areas, the Works Progress Administration announced a "substantial amount" would be spent on open-country projects.

Harry L. Hopkins, the Works Progress Administrator, said plans were being drafted for a wide variety of pick and shovel projects, with especial emphasis on improving farm-to-market roads.

On the basis of a survey of 138 agricultural counties, Hopkins reported that of the 2,100,000 families on relief in the open country and in small towns, only the heads of 29 per cent of the families could be classed as farm operators. The others, he said, had worked in the Progress Administration's program. In addition to $200,000,000 allotted to State highway departments, of which one-fourth will be spent on secondary roads, Hopkins said his organization would make this "one of the main features of its program."

Besides the road work, to be carried out on roads not on State highway systems, he said he planned such construction projects as small dams, levees, rebuilding of streets, waterworks, sewage disposal, extension of lighting systems, community sanitation projects, recreation projects, stream pollution control and sanitary surveys.

PRESIDENTIAL CANVASS
AMONG G. O. P. LEADERS

Robert H. Lucas Asks Them to Give Choices—Denounces Charles Hilles.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Letters sounding out the sentiment of local Republican leaders on various presidential candidates have been sent out by Robert H. Lucas of Kentucky, former executive director of the Republican National Headquarters. In the letters, sent to 3000 county chairmen, 450 city leaders and 800 "Young Republicans," Lucas included a sharp attack on Charles D. Hilles, National Committeeman from New York. He denounced Hilles as threatening to place "the indelible stamp of Wall Street on our ticket and platform." Adding that Hilles is "the dominating influence on the Republican National Committee," he called for local leaders to "take hold of the party's affairs."

Lucas asked the leaders to designate their choices for presidential nominee from the following or to add others:

Herbert Hoover, former Congressman; James M. Beck of Pennsylvania; Senator Borah of Idaho; former Vice-President Curtis; Senator Dickinson of Iowa; Representative Fish of New York; Senator Hastings of Delaware; Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey; Patrick J. Hurley, former Secretary of War; Arthur M. Hyde, former Secretary of Agriculture; Frank Knox, Chicago publisher; Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas; Arthur W. Little, New York publisher; former Gov. Frank Lowden of Illinois; Senator McNary of Oregon; Ogden Mills, former Secretary of the Treasury; Gov. Harry W. Nice of Maryland; Senator Nye of North Dakota; former Senator Arthur Robinson of Indiana; Theodore Roosevelt, former Governor of the Philippines; Representative Steiwer of Oregon; Senator Vandenberg of Michigan; Representative Wadsworth of New York, and former Senator James E. Watson of Indiana.

Most of the summer festivals are held in July. The Lion temple festival is more than 1000 years old. Every year beginning July 17 the gods are taken through the streets in a procession with 66 spears about 20 feet long. July 24 the gods are returned to the temple.

Progress Administration's program. In addition to $200,000,000 allotted to State highway departments, of which one-fourth will be spent on secondary roads, Hopkins said his organization would make this "one of the main features of its program."

Besides the road work, to be carried out on roads not on State highway systems, he said he planned such construction projects as small dams, levees, rebuilding of streets, waterworks, sewage disposal, extension of lighting systems, community sanitation projects, recreation projects, stream pollution control and sanitary surveys.

Harry L. Hopkins, the Works Progress Administrator, said plans were being drafted for a wide variety of pick and shovel projects, with especial emphasis on improving farm-to-market roads.

On the basis of a survey of 138 agricultural counties, Hopkins reported that of the 2,100,000 families on relief in the open country and in small towns, only the heads of 29 per cent of the families could be classed as farm operators. The others, he said, had worked in the

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight for the rights of the people, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be fearlessly independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Walter Williams.

PANG of grief struck through thousands of hearts in the six continents of the world when the news was flashed announcing the death of Walter Williams—grief which will long endure. Especially keen will be the pain of the men and women who came directly under his influence as Dean of the School of Journalism at the University of Missouri and who are carrying on his teachings.

How may we estimate such a man as was Walter Williams? Not by his degrees, the positions he filled, his executive ability, nor by his titles. In fact, those who knew him best never called him Dr. Williams or President Williams, except officially. As one of his newspaper colleagues recently said, "Walter Williams is the one man who needs no titles to add distinction."

We must evaluate him by the intangible, those tremendously important things which we can neither see nor touch, yet which reach the very soul of humanity and justify the creation of our kind. It was his influence over the hearts of people, his planting and fertilizing the seeds of justice and kindness so that they would flourish and increase in the hearts and minds of even the most refractory; it was this ability which lifted him above the high level of good teachers and made of him a great one—he gave part of himself to each student and created the propagation impulse.

Tolerance was one of Walter Williams' outstanding characteristics and he was gifted with that flexibility of lofty mind; witness his handling of the situation at the time he was drafted as president of the University of Missouri when the affairs of that great institution were in apparently hopeless turmoil. Emerson has said that great men do great things easily. With no blare of trumpets, but with a plentiful use of that uncommon thing, the misanthropic sense, Walter Williams brought sanity and harmony where hysteria and discord had prevailed.

Walter Williams lived for the ideals of truth, goodness and beauty. The pursuit of these cannot be terminated in a lifetime. It is a relay race in which the torch must be handed on at the close of life's endeavor through countless years of time as we know it. We can better carry on with what this great citizen-teacher has given us, for he has left the rich legacy of himself in so far as that he be possible. EMILE R. PAULOU.

Protest Against Traffic Law Fines.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I READ with interest the article in your paper about the "record" being made by Judge Simpson in City Court No. 1. If the object of the Police Courts is the raising of revenue for the city, I will add my praise to that of City Councilor Hay. However, that is not my understanding as to why these courts were created.

Mr. Hay should visit these courts once in a while and see the poor victims who are being forced to pay unreasonable fines. In most of the cases, it means taking food away from women and children. I have never seen Mr. Hay in one of these courts, and want to suggest that he pay a visit to City Court No. 1 and talk to some of these poor victims, and he will see what an injustice is being done.

I do not mean that people should be allowed to break traffic laws and go unpunished, but I believe in giving that justice should be tempered with mercy. It does not take intelligence for a man to sit on a bench and plaster large fines on everyone that is unfortunate enough to come up before him. However, it is a good way to get your name in the paper every day.

The McCord Case.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
IN 1869, Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase, in the decision of the Supreme Court in the McCord case, said: "Hay is one of the Legislature. We can only examine into its power under the Constitution; and the power to make exceptions to the appellate jurisdiction of this court is given by express words."

"What, then, is the effect of the repealing act upon the case before us? We cannot doubt as to this. Without jurisdiction, the court cannot proceed at all in any cause. Jurisdiction is the power to declare the law, and when it ceases to exist, the only function remaining to the court is that of announcing the fact and dismissing the cause. And this is not less clear upon authority than upon principle."

"It is quite clear then, that this court cannot proceed to pronounce judgment in this case, for it has no longer jurisdiction of the appeal; and judicial duty is not less fitly performed by declining ungranted jurisdiction than by exercising firmly that which the Constitution and the laws confer."

The court reversed itself on this very question in the same year. An eminent jurist once said: "A law is just what the Supreme Court says it is." But with these words of Chief Justice Chase before us, how can anyone seriously assert that the unlimited power of the Supreme Court to declare laws unconstitutional is granted by the Constitution or was intended to be by the framers of the Constitution? FLEEE.

BUT NEVER A DIVIDEND.

When the Wheeler-Rayburn bill was before Congress, there was great uneasiness throughout the land. In the propaganda of the hour, the bill was represented as passing the "death sentence" on the holding company. Precious tears were shed for the defenseless stockholders whose investments would be destroyed and whose future would be wrapped "in shallows and miseries" and bleak penury. Noble hearts bled profusely for that vague, but always available, clientele, the widows and orphans.

That phase of the bill was pretense. The bill carried no death sentence on the holding company. It was designed to abolish "unnecessary holding companies," through the manipulation of which frenzied finance has, in these latter years, scaled dizzy heights.

A choice sample of this racketeering is now before the American people, thanks to the Senate committee investigating the lobbying activities of the interests that fought the Wheeler-Rayburn measure. The case of Associated Gas & Electric is in the news.

This company operates in 26 states. In its campaign against the Wheeler-Rayburn bill, it spent some $791,000. The records of its expenditures have been removed from its files, and, accordingly, no itemized statement of its disbursements has as yet been compiled. But a witness before the Senate committee, Stuart C. Ross, who acted as investigator for a New York legislative committee, has testified that Associated Gas & Electric has paid Howard C. Hopson $2,805,000 since 1929. Hopson was described by the witness as the "master mind" of Associated Gas & Electric. He has disappeared, which, so his associates say, is an old custom of his. But there seems to be no doubt that the fellow has prospered during the depression. As the witness Ross explained it, Hopson owns several companies which performed certain services for the parent company, such as accounting, tax consulting and engineering, for which Hopson collected the enormous total quoted.

It has been told, too, that Hopson and the president of Associated Gas & Electric, J. T. Mangle, control a voting trust which enables them to elect the directors of the top holding company and its 150 subsidiaries. Mangle is reported gravely ill and unable to appear before the Senate committee. Other officers have been questioned. One of them, the treasurer, seemed to know little, if anything, about the company's financial affairs. Asked concerning some of the subsidiaries, he confessed he had never heard of them.

But a vice-president of the company, Fred S. Burroughs, salary, $60,000 a year, was not quite so blandly uninformed as was the treasurer. From Burroughs it was learned that the company had paid Basil O'Connor, a former law partner of President Roosevelt, $25,000. The same fee was paid Pat Hurley, Secretary of War in Mr. Hoover's Cabinet. O'Connor, it was stated, was employed as counsel in a recapitalization program, and Mr. Hurley has volunteered the information, in a formal statement to the press, that he represented the company and the investors before governmental commissions.

Well, it's high time that somebody did something for the investors in Associated Gas & Electric which, according to the testimony, has never paid a dividend on its common stock.

Who those investors are, how many of them there are, how many widows and orphans are included in the number, we are unable to say. But they are victims of the holding-company racket which the Wheeler-Rayburn bill was drafted to scotch, in response to an insistent public opinion.

MUSSOLINI AND THE REPORTER.

Pierre Benoit, we fear, will never be the same again. Pierre is a French reporter who was sent by his boss to interview Mussolini and was so impressed by the great man that he left his presence in a daze. For some time, Pierre walked the streets of Rome, "without knowing where he went." After a time, however, he was able to shake off the spell in some degree and get busy at his typewriter.

And what did Caesar have to say? Well, verbally he took poor little Haile Selassie by the throat and shook him as a terrier does a rat. In thundering accents, he insisted upon carrying out Italy's plans in Africa, leaving to Ethiopia's Emperor to say whether or not war is to be involved. That is, if Haile Selassie quits cold and hands his country over to Il Duce, the guis will not boom. And Mussolini had another thing to say: He would keep the borders of Italy lined with troops, a million men if necessary, to safeguard Italy against European incursions while the African crusade is going on.

While he talked, Pierre "no longer saw the room but only the extraordinary personage before me." He informs us that Mussolini "appears as the greatest force in the world." Pierre acknowledges that he never felt more timid and awkward than while listening to Mussolini's "savage accents," watching his noble visage—

the front of Jove himself;

An eye like Mars, to threaten and command;

A station like the herald Mercury

New-lighted on a heaven-kissing hill.

It seems to us the best thing for Pierre's boss to do is to take him off these devastating assignments and give him a nice quiet job assembling society items.

Julius Caesar is given the longest biography in the Columbia University's new encyclopedia. So, after all the centuries, the shade across the Styx may still write: Veni, vidi, vici.

PAROLES AND DEPORTATIONS.

No participant in the attacks on parole abuses can object to the 151 commutations of Federal prison sentences issued last week by President Roosevelt. Nor can any of the critics of deportation methods oppose the expulsion of the 151 persons affected by his action. For the release of these alien criminals so they may be deported will help to relieve crowded conditions in penal institutions, and will free the taxpayer from the burden of their maintenance.

The procedure is possible under laws enacted in 1929, permitting deportation of any alien who commits a felony within five years after entering this country, or who commits two felonies at any time after entry, or violates the narcotic laws. The action thus is by no means an anti-alien drive, as is urged by some of our professional patriots, but a part of the general Federal campaign against crime. Those who still hold the exploded theory that aliens are responsible for the crime wave will be disappointed to learn that none of the 151 to be deported is a criminal "big shot." Almost half are narcotic peddlers, 50 were convicted of counterfeiting, only a few of murder or assault.

The present batch of deportations is merely the beginning of a general weeding out of aliens from Federal prisons. Foreign-born residents who violate American hospitality are comparatively few, but it is to the country's best interest that those few be deported.

AN EXAMPLE IN REGULATION.

At a time when regulation of the public utilities by the states is all but despaired of, the story of what has just happened in New Jersey may spur some of the other state commissions to action.

One of the most contradictory characters in American politics played a major role in the New Jersey phenomenon. He is Frank Hague, the Democratic boss. When there was a vacancy on the Public Service Commission of the State, Hague had Frank J. Reardon of Jersey City elevated to the position over the protests of the Utility Users' Protective League and all the other reform bodies. Reardon surprised everybody by exposing the fraudulent valuation which the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey has enjoyed for rate-making purposes.

The result has been a 20 per cent reduction in the company's rates, reducing by $5,176,566 the total annually collected from customers. All this in a State where the utilities have always been successful in resisting regulation, where the State regulatory body has been regarded as the tool of the corporations, and where rates have long aroused popular indignation. The usual sophistries appeared in the hearing. In what is known as "going value" the utilities tried to include such corollaries as the George Washington Bridge, the Holland Tunnel, the highway system and the growing birthrate of the 13 New Jersey counties in the Public Service Corporation domain. A witness for the company even testified that he had examined all the thousands of poles belonging to the company and found them sound, though all he did was to ride around in an automobile.

The thing was so palpably a set-up of the sort which has beaten down regulation in the states that the three members of the New Jersey commission disallowed all the fantasies entered by the defense and ordered a reduction. There the matter rests. There is little expectation that the company will carry the fight into the Federal courts. Going over the heads of the state regulatory bodies and taking rate cases into the Federal courts has been one of the main-springs of the public ownership movement. With the shadow of the Tennessee Valley project lying dark across the way, the utilities are not so eager as they were to run such matters into the maze of Federal jurisprudence.

This being so, the country will wonder why other state regulatory bodies do not follow the example of the New Jersey body. The utilities are neither so puissant politically as they were, nor so disposed to resist regulation by the states. They will not fail to observe that the reduction in New Jersey has not affected Public Service Corporation stock. It is true that Thomas Nesbitt McCarter, president of the corporation, complains that its 15 per cent dividend will have to be cut, but it can still represent a handsome profit on the investment.

We commend the case to our own regulatory body in Missouri.

BAREFOOT GOLF.

His name identifies him politically. William F. Purnell Lambertson is necessarily a Republican. And the wealth and fashion of Fairview, Kan., which rallied around him at the polls, was somewhat shocked, we apprehend, when they read that their Representative in Congress had taken to barefoot golf. Further, the chap is a proselyter. He is trying to persuade his fellow statesmen to remove their shoes and socks. This intimate contact with the earth, he says, sends a tingle through the body which crackles off the finger tips and makes one feel, even in these dour days, as happy as a deserving Democrat.

With the surmised humiliation of Fairview's haut monde, we really are not concerned. For the corporeal exhilaration of Representative Lambertson, we don't give a hoot. Still, the experiment intrigues. What is the effect on one's golf game? There is the question of pith and moment. Will it enable a mediocre votary who has never got away from the high 70s to do it in par, or, possibly, shatter the course record? If the answer is Yes, then farewell socks and farewell shoes and also farewell slacks.

WILL HISTORY REPEAT?

The death of John F. Wixford, at 74, brings reminiscences of muddy St. Louis city water as it existed before his clarification methods got in their work. The accounts of the pre-exposition water supply—every tumbler of which, according to Mark Twain, held "an acre of land in solution"—are almost unbelievable to the younger generation, which takes pure, sparkling water as a matter of course. Their elders had resigned themselves to faucets that sent forth a turbid torrent, until civic pride, just before the world's fair of 1904, roused a revolt. It was then that the labors of Mr. Wixford and his associates perfected a method that banished sediment forever.

All honor to the persevering chemical engineer for his part in bringing about a marvel that touched the daily life of every citizen! And now, 31 years later, another scientific wonder-worker is needed in St. Louis. The present generation also has resigned itself to an apparently necessary evil: smoke-laden air that tortures respiratory tracts, defaces buildings, kills vegetation and cuts property values for months of every year. Science assuredly can purify St. Louis air as it purified St. Louis water.

MORE POWER TO JUDGE SIMPSON!

We print in the letter column a protest against the fines levied on traffic violators in Judge Simpson's court. We dissent from the views of our correspondent. It is undoubtedly true that the fines assessed by Judge Simpson constitute a hardship on some persons, but if they did not, the lesson would hardly be driven home that the traffic laws of St. Louis are to be obeyed.

In this connection, a recent article in Harper's Magazine, after an exhaustive discussion of automobile accidents, came to the conclusion that the most effective means of combating them is to visit certain punishment upon offenders. For many years in St. Louis, traffic law violators, in effect, have been slapped on the wrist for endangering the lives of people. Small fines or no fines at all have been the rule, with the fixer working overtime.

At last, it seems, we have a Police Court Judge who takes his duties seriously and discharges them fearlessly. More power to him!

TODAY AND TOMORROW

The Banking Bill

IN the whole long list of bills still before Congress, the one that has by far the greatest possibility for good or evil, the one that may affect most powerfully the economic and political fortunes of the whole nation, is the banking bill. Here is a bill drawn for the purpose of attempting to prevent in the future the kind of monetary catastrophe through which we have just passed. Compared with this bill, every other bill now before Congress is relatively unimportant.

Yet the banking bill passed the Senate last week without any discussion of its vital principles. Senator Glass, who sponsored it, dealt with these principles, not as questions to be debated, but in the mood of a man who felt he had to placate an unruly child but had conceded nothing that matters. No one who believed in the principles of the bill expounded or defended them. No one who disbelieved argued against them. The bill will now be worked out in conference, which means that Congress will finally get a bill which two dozen men have fought over behind closed doors.

The career of this bill illustrates vividly the simple truth that if you give public men too many things to consider, they cannot consider any of them.

The heart of the bill—known as Title II—deals with a subject of the highest importance and the greatest difficulty. It is concerned with the supply of money, not with the cash money men carry in their wallets, but with the large volume of money which they hold as bank deposits subject to check. The bulk of this money is created by bank loans. It increases when loans increase and decreases when loans are paid off. According to presumably reliable estimates, the total supply of this money was inflated from 18 billions in 1921 to 22.7 billions in 1929 and was deflated to 15.1 billions in 1933.

It is generally admitted that the rapid expansion and the rapid contraction of the supply of money is an evil. The expansion produces inflation. The contraction produces deflation. It is also admitted that it is possible to exercise some control over the power of the banks to create check money by making loans. Every central banking system in the world, including the Federal Reserve System since the war, has recognized that it has the duty to control.

It is also admitted that the instruments of control are the size of the reserves which banks must carry against their deposits, the price that banks must pay for borrowing from the central bank and the purchase or sale of securities by the central bank. It is also admitted that, while the Federal Reserve System has used all these instruments, it did not use them properly or effectively from, say, 1928 to 1932.

Finally, it is generally admitted that one of the obvious reasons why the Federal Reserve System did not have an effective monetary policy was that power and responsibility were scattered, rather than concentrated.

Now all that the Eccles bill really proposed to do about this was to concentrate the power and responsibility. This is the vital essence of the bill. Whether the power of monetary control should be in the Washington board, or in the board and a committee representing the Reserve banks, whether the Secretary of the Treasury and the Comtroller should be on the board—all these are secondary questions. Provided responsibility was fixed somewhere in a publicly accountable group of men, the only certain lesson to be drawn from the country's experience is applied, and the fundamental purpose of Gov. Eccles is achieved.

But here, as in so many other New Deal measures, the essence of the matter was confused by irrelevant prejudices and ill-considered trifles. The original bill not merely concentrated responsibility somewhere; it concentrated it in a board under the influence of the President. This was wholly unnecessary to the real purpose of the bill and laid it open to the suspicion, unfounded, I believe, that it had some other purpose—probably to enable the President to finance an interminable deficit.

Instead of amending the bill to meet this perfectly legitimate criticism, the administration strategists stood pat, had a useless quarrel with men who were sympathetic with their main purpose, let Senator Glass amend the bill along the very lines which any intelligent supporter of the bill should have been glad to see it amended. The net result is a better bill than the original. Yet it is a bill which represents a triumph of Gov. Eccles' fundamental idea. But the triumph is dressed up as a defeat. Through sheer stubbornness, based on an inability to distinguish the relevant from the irrelevant, the administration is being thoroughly spanked before it is allowed to carry off the prize.

Truly, Arthur Crook of the New York Times was right when he said the other day that in Washington they have developed a marvelous capacity for snatching defeat from the jaws of victory.

It must not be assumed, of course, that fixing of responsibility for controlling the supply of money is any guarantee that it will be wisely exercised. Economic science is at present a long way from having achieved a reliable and settled theory of monetary policy. There are profound questions about which the ablest men differ.

It would be a mistake, therefore, to claim for the bill that it is a remedy for the curse of inflation and deflation. But it can be said, surely, that it is better to proceed into the obscure region of monetary control with our eyes open because we know who is responsible than to drift in the dark with responsibility divided.

"RECOVERY" UNDER FASCISM.

GERMAN and Italian propagandists have made much of recent "reductions in unemployment" in those countries as signs that the Hitler and Mussolini policies are working out.

The International Labor Office now reports that the change has occurred only because of active preparations for war.

German unemployment fell about 500,000 during the last year and in Germany the absorption of workers has taken place in the armament industries, while Italy's preparations for the Ethiopian war account for its "recovery."

Fascist "recovery" means two little white crosses permanently planted on a hillside for every job temporarily created.

Crux of Tax Exemption

From the Cleveland Press.

WE had set aside this space today to discuss the question of a constitutional amendment eliminating all tax-exempt securities, and to urge that Congress anticipate the amendment's adoption by immediately declaring future Federal issues subject to Federal taxation.

What we had intended to write might have been too shrill for pleasant hot-weather reading. So we publish, instead, a cool, objective analysis prepared by that non-emotional and highly respected economic research agency, the National Industrial Conference Board. It follows in part:

"The existence of a large volume of tax-exempt securities in a country in which high income tax rates are imposed is thoroughly undesirable. A substantial amount of income escapes taxation entirely, and even an approximate application of the principle of ability to pay becomes impossible."

"The corollary effects are equally important. Rates for Federal and municipal credit markets, so long as tax exemption is continued. Inevitably, therefore, there is a tendency for government to take over certain activities that might otherwise be left to private enterprise."

"It is now obvious to students of Federal taxation that tax-exempt securities have been eliminated by a constitutional amendment at or about the time the size of the Federal debt was at its peak."

COERCION BY WIRE.

ONE decided good may yet come out of the Senate lobby inquiry. It may liberate the Congressman from the terror of the telegram. In this sense, it can be argued that the greater the number of telegrams dictated and paid for by the utilities in the late "death-sentence" vote in the House, the better for the country in the long run. Discredit all the messages that pour in upon the nation's representatives in moments of crisis and our statesmen may yet learn to call their souls their own.

People since time immemorial have been urged to write to their Congressmen. But the art of influencing legislators has not doubt been developed to the point now where letters, too, can be typewritten by the thousands. They can even be mimeographed for the personal touch and signed in the same free and easy way that telegrams to Congress are signed. The reaction from too much pressure may go so far as to make a Congressman distrust anything but an obviously handwritten letter signed by a constituent he knows.

The telegraphed avalanches and tidal waves that descend upon Presidents, legislators and tribunes of the people should henceforth be regarded by the country with a healthy skepticism. For the recipients, it should spell relief. What sounds like an indignant constituent is only a slick publicity agent. Courage and intelligence in public life are not always the hazards they are made out to be.

MUSICAL NOTE.

What the concert of nations needs most is somebody willing to play second fiddle for every job temporarily created.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—ADMINISTRATION lobbying in the halls of Congress may have been under fire more vigorously than in previous years, but it is not new.

It has been practiced by every administration, Democratic or Republican. Without it the legislative machine could scarcely move. It is particularly necessary in a form of government in which members of the Cabinet do not serve as members of the legislative branch, as in Europe.

Therefore it has come to be a fact that the administration must be successful in lobbying through its program on Capitol Hill is most successful in everything else.

Hoover began the system of having a special White House secretary to act as lobbyist on the Hill. Roosevelt has continued it. His personal lobbyist is Charles W. Wolf, a brain trust member with a difference.

West began to imbibe Brain Trust intellectuality at the age of 21, when he was appointed Vice Consul at Naples and attended the University of Naples on the side. After that he taught at Harvard, Denison University and Tufts, jumping into the rough-and-tumble of Congress straight from the cloistered life of the campus. For two terms he made a brilliant record, his only mistake being to run for the Senate against that sagacious, cigar-chewing former Governor of Ohio, "Honorable" Vic Donahey.

Last winter when Roosevelt began getting into hot water as a result of Old Guard sabotage and Marvin McIntyre bungling, he turned West as his lobbying agent on Capitol Hill. There he did such a good job that he has been rewarded with the position of Under-Secretary of the Interior.

Ben Cohen Spotlight.

MOST spotlighted congressional agent of the New Deal recently is Ben Cohen, whose presence at the conferees' meeting of the holding corporation bill caused three House members to walk out.

Cohen is one of the most active figures in the New Deal. Working in his close friend, Tom Corcoran, he has been behind more important legislation than any other member of the administration.

He began with the Securities Act. This was drafted during four days and four nights, while he was locked up in a room in the Carlton Hotel, shortly after Roosevelt was inaugurated. In order to insure that his efforts would not be interrupted, Cohen sent his one suit to the cleaners with instructions not to bring it back before four days.

Co-author of the act was Jim Landis, now a member of the Securities Exchange Commission. At the very end, the two authors disagreed. Landis packed his bag and walked out, leaving Cohen to finish the bill by himself.

It now stands as the law of the United States, almost as it came from Cohen's pen.

Officially, Cohen is in the legal division of PWA. Actually, he is the most important legislative draftsman of the New Deal. He works his stenographers in two shifts; can't understand why they don't like to remain at the office until 2 a. m. as he does.

Slave Driver.

ONE of the most sympathetic men in Washington, there is almost nothing he will not do for a friend. But he is a slave driver in his office.

Cohen is Jewish, wealthy, but has no regard for money. His clothes are a tragedy. He shaves a little as possible, and then in his office. Occasionally he sends his stenographer out to buy him a clean collar.

Most efficient administration lobbyists on Capitol Hill always have been the Army and Navy. They go at it systematically.

Attached to the House Naval Affairs Committee is Commander Isaac C. Rogart. He was taken from the retired list and assigned to the committee. He is paid by the Navy. His duties are not great, however, due to the fact that the President is the Navy's best lobbyist. When the Navy wants anything from Congress these days, F. D. R. sees that his pet department gets it.

Military Agent.

ATTACHED to the Senate Military Affairs Committee is Capt. Sam Greenwell, astute, modest lobbyist for the War Department. He is paid by the Army and spends all his time with the committee.

Legislative expert of the Interior Department is baldish, brilliant Rufus C. Poole, 32, one-time law student under German Prof. Ernest Freund. As apprentice to his present job, Poole drafted tax legislation for the Governor of Illinois. Now all interior bills pass through his hands. Says Poole:

"For God's sake, don't call me a lobbyist. I do not do any button-

Chester Davis is the big lobbying gun-toter of the Agriculture Department and an efficient one at that. Having been trained with the farm lobby, which nearly put through the equalization fee and the McNary-Haugen bill, Davis can pull bills and senatorial speeches out of his pocket with more legibility than almost anyone on the Hill.

Son of an Iowa tenant farmer, Davis worked as a farmhand, printer and country editor to educate himself, interrupted his studies at Grinnell College to help his parents, who had lost their farm through foreclosure.

Self-Lobbyists.

CHIEF lobbyist for the Postoffice Department is big, bald, Jim Farley, himself. Rarely does Jim appear on the Hill, does most of his work by telephone. Jim also does a lot of legislative work for the President outside of postal matters, and in these he relies on pudgy Emil Hurja and glad-hander Bill Hawes, his assistants.

Secretary of Commerce Roper is his own lobbyist, and a good one. Dan, who once served as clerk of a Senate committee, knows all the tricks of the game. At present he is doing some heavy axing for the Bland-Copeland Ship Subsidy Bill, which the President considers a dubious piece of legislation and which Senate Progressives thought they had pigeon-holed.

Fanny Perkins also is her own chief lobbyist for the Labor Department. With the Social Security Bill and the Wagner Labor Disputes Act before Congress this session, Miss Perkins beat a well-worn path to the Hill. At times she was pulled out of tight holes by Isador Lubin, Commissioner of Labor Statistics, and by able Assistant Secretary Ed McGrady, who is one-time legislative agent of the A. F. of L. knows the congressional ropes as few other lobbyists.

New Deal lobbying, as in previous administrations, consists of explaining legislation to the so-called legislators.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY GETS OLD MAGAZINES

Discussion in "St. Louis Life" Covers Petticoats, Immorality and Emancipation.

Society gossip, political news, amusements and other aspects of life in St. Louis in the 1890s are reflected in issues of the old St. Louis Life, a weekly magazine, which have been donated to the Missouri Historical Society by Mrs. Julian Laughlin, North and South roads, Clayton. The magazines will be placed in the society's library on the second floor of the east wing of Jefferson Memorial.

Women's fashions were frequently discussed in editorials. In a July issue in 1893 the editors had this to say about petticoats: "Women are now giving their attention to the one great disability of the sex, viz., petticoats. Get rid of petticoats if you would thoroughly emancipate yourselves, sisters. 'No woman can be on a level with man until she can get around as lively as he can. Stick to petticoats and the ever-present helping feminine hand, or discard the petticoats and be independent.'"

Conservative on Bathing Suits.

But on the matter of women's bathing suits the editors were more conservative. They wrote: "To look at the illustrations of female sea-bathers in the daily papers one would think the women cast aside all modesty when they reached the sea shore and vied with other bathers in the attempt to don the most abbreviated ballet costumes. These pictures show shameless exposure at both extremes."

Local politics came in for almost as much attention as women's fashions. In a Thanksgiving Week issue there appeared this paragraph: "There are few people in St. Louis who cannot find something to be thankful for. Why, even the Republicans are thankful that they are allowed to go to the polls."

In the same issue the editors struck a still familiar note when they wrote: "We are thankful that there is a possibility of the smoke nuisance being abated and that our city by next Thanksgiving may boast of as pure an atmosphere as that of any other town."

List of Mayor's Appointments.

In commenting on a list of appointments by the Mayor, the magazine stated: "The Mayor's list of appointments was quite as bad as his worst enemy could desire. The list contained an elevator boy, a shyder lawyer, several habitual drunkards and a man who has served a term in jail for election frauds."

The humor section of the magazine contained this verdict by a coroner's jury: "We, the jury, find that the deceased came to his death from a fracture of the skull and a large number of cuts and bruises on his body, caused by running for Congress in the Eighth Congressional District."

The magazine was edited by S. V. Moore.

Remarks Business Is Recovering as Labor Hours in New York City Are Extended 20 Per Cent.

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—THERE is a marked business recovery in New York to see most of the breadwinners of 1,250,000 destitute people going to work. Yet there is no good reason why it cannot be done. The work is planned, approved and ready for the workmen. The money to do it has been appropriated by Congress and allocated by the administration to New York City. The New York organization to do it is ready, able and anxious to go.

Yet that does not mean that it will be done. Why? The complexities of our vaunted system of Federal checks and balances have already taken hold like the arms of an octopus or the flying filaments of a spinning spider. The real job now is not to put people to work. That is relatively easy. The job now is to battle the bureaucracy.

Last year CWA stepped into the breach of PWA delay like Lochinvar coming out of the West. It could save the day because it was free. Responsibility and authority were single and the job was done. Its successor, WPA, is bound hand-foot-and-fingers like Gulliver in the Land of Lilliputians.

Inter-departmental jealousies and general Federal ponderosity have "systematized" it.

Yet the job must be done. As Dr. Munyon used to remark: "There is hope!"

Frank G. Wainwright Entered U. S. From Canada Without Obtaining Required Visa

An order for deportation of Frank G. Wainwright, former owner of the Flyers' hockey team, was received today by immigration inspectors from the Secretary of State.

Wainwright, who entered the United States without obtaining the required visa, is to be returned to Canada and will be barred from entering the United States again except by special permission of the State Department. Ordinarily Canadians may enter by securing a visa from a United States Consul. Since his arrest on the immigration charge two months ago, Wainwright has been on $500 bond. He admitted, after his arrest, that he had entered the United States at various times since 1918 without securing a visa. He said he did not know this was a violation of the immigration laws.

The Judenkenner, attempting to link Catholic clerics with Jewish "profiteers," printed a front page cartoon showing a priest addressing his congregation while a Jew stood behind him smiling and rubbing his hands.

The Stürmer, published by the leading Nazi Jew-baiter, Julius Streicher, criticized Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath for "availing himself... of the service of two full-blooded Jews, Richard Mayer, in charge of the eastern division of the Foreign Office, and Siegfried Hey, his deputy."

Most of Them Will Be Commemorative of Historical and Sporting Events

VIENNA, Aug. 1.—American tourists who send home letters from Bulgaria this summer will give their recipients a rare collection of special stamps. Nearly 300 special issues are scheduled for this summer, mostly commemorative of events.

The various Balkan victors with Balkan heroes are given a place on the summer stamp issuance. Finally, at the beginning of August, the unveiling of a memorial to Vladislav III, King of Poland and Hungary, will be commemorated by an issue of stamps inscribed in Bulgarian and Polish.

BOY WHO AVERTED COLLISION OF STREET CARS, REWARDED

Receiver Kiel Gives $50 to Eugene Saffern, 15, Who Pulled Unconscious Motorist From Seat

Eugene Saffern, 15 years old, who prevented a collision of two street cars in University City last Thursday when the operator of one lost consciousness, has been given a $50 reward for courage and presence of mind by Henry W. Kiel, trustee for the St. Louis Public Service Co. The presentation took place at Kiel's office, 3869 Park avenue, yesterday. Saffern, who lives at 704 Interdrive, saw that Charles Harper, operator of an eastbound Kirkwood-Ferguson car on which he was a passenger, was unconscious. A University car stood on the same track on the loop just west of Big Bend boulevard. Saffern pulled Harper from the seat, and when the motorman's foot was taken from a pedal an automatic control stopped the car.

5 MEXICAN AGRARIANS KILLED AFTER PARLEY WITH PRESIDENT

Attacked in Colima, Supposedly in Ambush, When Returning From Conference

MEXICO, D. F., Aug. 1.—Dispatches from Colima say that five agrarians were killed, supposedly in an ambush, while returning to Ocotillo after conferring with President Cardenas on agrarian problems.

From the State of Tabasco come reports that the new Governor, Gen. Aureo C. Calles, and the military commander, Gen. Miguel Henriques, have given opponents of Tomas Garrido Canabal, former political dictator of the State, 24 hours to leave under threat of forcible expulsion.

Representatives here of the student group campaigning against Garrido obtained a Federal injunction to prevent the order from being put into effect. They also sought the release of 70 students captured yesterday by Garridistas as they entered the State of Tabasco from Vera Cruz.

Silvano Barba Gonzalez, Federal Secretary of Interior, promised prompt settlement of political difficulties in the State of Tamaulipas, asserting that unless Gov. Rafael Villarreal and his opponents solved their differences immediately, the Government would intervene.

Organizations of peasants and workers seek the removal of Villarreal and several municipal councils which are in open opposition to the State Government.

THE DIFFERENCE IN PRICE IS SLIGHT—THE DIFFERENCE IN TASTE IS GREAT

Blended
"the Seagram Way" means Blended for Better Taste!

Seagram's Crown
Blended Whiskies

FOR GIN, TOO—Say Seagram's and be Sure

Eat your picnic-and keep it, too!

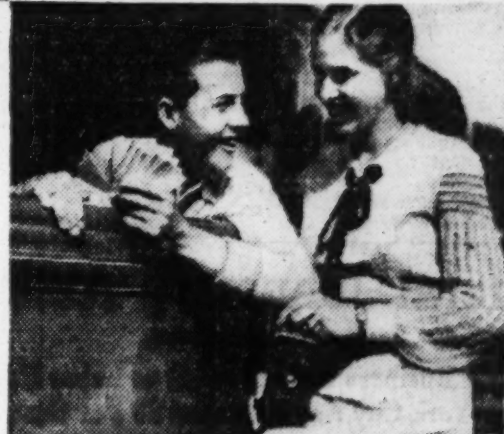

ANY CAMERA IS HUNGRY for pictures like this. Give yours a treat—next time you pack up the sandwiches and salad, see that it goes along.

WITH SNAPSHOTS the fun keeps on—next week and next winter. "What a day that was." What a swell bunch—and you have them for keeps.

So don't be one who "forgot to bring the Kodak." People are never sorry about the snapshots they got—they only mourn for the ones they didn't take. Snapshooting's at its best these days—plenty to shoot at, and the weather to do it. Kodak as you go.

And as you stay at home, too. Yards look so pretty now—fine backgrounds for pictures of the family.

Kodaks as low as $5; Brownies from $1 up... at your dealer's.

PICTURES AHEAD—and this pair is ready. Out of the day will come some great snapshots. "Something to remember you by."

Snapshots save the high spots. It's a great way to keep a diary as you go along. How long since you've made pictures of your family? It pays to keep the record straight, the memories fresh. And everybody likes pictures. When the prints are finished, the whole crowd rallies round.

LOAD UP WITH KODAK VERICHROME FILM FOR THE WEEK-END

ANY CAMERA is a better camera when it's loaded with Kodak Verichrome Film. Good snapshots come twice as easy—you get them in the shade and on cloudy days, as well as in the sun. Your people look natural, true to life. Don't take chances with the snapshots which may be so precious later on. Always use Verichrome... Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, N. Y.

SUNDAY IS AD DAY

YOU GET THE YOUNG MEN SUNDAY

Sunday is always a holiday for the boys and the young men in the home. It is not necessary to get up early and hurry to school or work. After Sunday breakfast the boys become absorbed in the Big, complete newspaper. There is general news of the moment... a new Heavyweight Champion of the world... a full account of the big track meet... the latest news on the prospects of winning the pennant, etc. Sunday Sports News is something that every real boy wants to read. And equally important are the advertisements, because the boy must know his automobiles... camp equipment... sports accessories... clothes, and a hundred and one other things that boys of all ages want and eventually get. Advertisers reach the young men through the Big Sunday Newspaper... "SUNDAY IS AD DAY"

JUSTICE DEPARTMENT AIDS AAA IN TAX SUITS

Sends Experts to Help District Attorneys Fight Injunctions Against Processing Levies.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Tax experts from the Attorney-General's staff are being sent to help United States District Attorneys fight suits for injunctions to halt collection of AAA processing taxes. The number of such suits reached 636 yesterday.

Six Justice Department experts are working on what are considered to be key cases. Another will be sent next week to defend the Agricultural Adjustment Administration against suits of 17 packers in Chicago. Nearly 40 tax lawyers, assigned to District Court cases, are available for such work.

Meanwhile, the 90 members of the Justice Department's tax division, under Frank J. Wideman, Assistant Attorney-General, are devoting most of their time to legal defense of the New Deal farm program.

Seth Thomas, Agriculture Department Solicitor, said a Government victory in the processing tax litigation might mean bankruptcy to some of the concerns which have stopped tax payments pending outcome of suits challenging constitutionality of the levies.

This would be likely to occur, he said, in the case of companies with limited capital, which were rapidly approaching insolvency when they went to court to avoid paying the taxes. Some companies, he said, probably adopted the method of stave off failure, hoping invalidation of the taxes might save them. He said the suits would put an extra burden on such companies if the taxes are upheld.

It is the Government's practice when a suit against the tax is filed immediately to make demand for payment. This subjects the company to a penalty of 5 per cent of the tax for failure to pay. If the company loses the suit, it thus would be liable for the tax, the 5 per cent penalty and interest at 1 per cent a month virtually from the date the litigation was started.

Wherever possible, the Solicitor said, the Government is seeking to require companies contesting the tax by injunction suits, to deposit the tax, penalties and interest with the Government pending outcome of the litigation, or to furnish bond to cover them.

Thomas said companies resorting to suits against the processing taxes could not also take advantage of the penalties otherwise sometimes accorded of delaying payment of the tax for 180 days.

150 EAST SIDE TAVERN MEN BEHIND IN LICENSE PAYMENTS

Drive to Collect These and Taxicab Fees Announced by Commissioner Connors.
John T. Connors, Commissioner of Finance of East St. Louis, in announcing a drive to collect license fees, said yesterday that 150 of 250 tavern owners had failed to pay the third installment on their city liquor licenses, now a month overdue. The annual license is $500 and the installment, $125.

He said warrants would be sought for those who failed to comply with the license ordinance. The fine provided is from $25 to $200. Included in the drive, Connors said, would be delinquent taxicab drivers who have failed to pay the second semi-annual installment of $12.50 on their cab licenses.

Call From Tokio.
Mussolini Writes.
Another Strike Planned.
To Guard the Pacific.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

THE League of Nations, was "mildly excited" when the Abyssinian Representative Hawari was called "long distance" FROM TOKIO. How much would Mussolini pay to know what was said in that telephone call?

Abyssinia's delegate, "didn't know who called him up," Abyssinia's diplomat has probably read Talleyrand's statement that language was given to let men disguise their thoughts. The Abyssinian representative may have been called by some Japanese newspaper, perhaps the Yomiuri Shimbun, a very enterprising Tokio newspaper.

While the League talks, Mussolini leaves no uncertainty as to his plans, whatever the League may suggest or request.

His signed article, published in the Milan Popolo D'Italia declares that Italy will enter Africa for colonization purposes, to assure the safety of Italian colonies there. "Abolishment of slavery is not our object," Mussolini writes, "but it will be a logical consequence of our policy in Ethiopia."

He adds "Ethiopians do not consider themselves Negroes, but Semites."

This may dampen the ardor of Negroes in Harlem, New York City, now earnestly enlisting in the Abyssinian army.

Mussolini says he will not talk about promoting civilization, although such promotion would be the natural result of his action in Abyssinia.

At least, Mussolini is no hypocrite, he tells Pierre Benoit, the well-known French journalist: "The Emperor of Ethiopia knows my resources as well as my intentions. It is for him to study the risk of such an adventure, and knowing the risk, to reach a decision."

Geneva reports dysentery among the Italian troops, with 15,000 incapacitated.

Sending men on foot to tropical Africa in this rainy season may have been a necessary part of Mussolini's "gesture," but wisdom would seem to indicate only operations from the air.

Unpleasant news for Italy reports a British refusal to consider a war loan to Italy.

Whether the refusal is based on "moral reluctance," or on business common sense, is not certain.

The Emperor of Ethiopia, displeased when England forbade shipping arms to his country, refused to supply extra guards for the British legation at Addis Ababa.

Britain accordingly sends from India a company of Sikhs, tall, reliable, determined, bearded fighting men from the Punjab of India. The British trust them completely, as the Pope relies on his Swiss guards, whose loyalty has been demonstrated through many generations.

Mr. Samuel Darcy, American Communist party delegate at Moscow, tells the Communist congress that Communists in the American Longshoremen's Union will seek to tie up shipping in the United States on a big scale, on the Pacific Coast and in New York, Boston and New Orleans. The strike is planned for September, when a labor agreement with ship owners expires.

Andrew Furuseth, for many years president of the International Seamen's Union, says concerning the proposed strike: "I have asked the immigration authorities to investigate and deport the leaders. Most of them are Aliens, in this country illegally. They take their orders from Moscow. We know that. The dispatches from Moscow confirm our own information. These leaders are recklessly exposing their membership to jail sentences. They do not worry about the seamen's welfare. They are using the seamen as a tool to promote a revolution."

Mr. Swanson, Secretary of the Navy, says nothing will be decided about additional United States fortifications in the Pacific until two existing treaties expire.

Nevertheless, you may safely prophesy that President Roosevelt will establish at Guam and Manila, such military air bases as will interest any government having shipping or other interests in that neighborhood.

Thanks to Gov. Lehman and Mayor LaGuardia of New York, Thomas E. Dewey, able young lawyer, undertakes exposure and prosecution of racketeers that take at least $1,000,000 annually from New York business men, big and little.

Mr. Dewey, on the radio, appeals to victims of racketeers to give him

The Training of Children

By Angelo Patri

OUR first impulse, when something annoys or hurts us, is to get rid of it at once, destroy it, put it out of our lives. It is a good impulse and serves us well most of the time. But when we allow it to enter a field where impulse has no place, it is unfortunate. Where children are under consideration the impulse to get rid of them is out of place. It is our duty as parents and teachers to stand by our assignment. Once the child is in our care we have no right to even wish to get rid of him, human as that wish may be. When a child starts trouble in the home we cannot put him out. Even if that were not forbidden in social practice it would be forbidden by the consequences. You cannot get rid of a troublesome child by ridding yourself of his presence. The thought of him will be there just the same and you still will have to do something about him, something truly helpful before you can rest.

Troublesome children need to be studied. When one of them is impudent, disobedient, idle, careless or fails to adapt himself, no good will come of anger and loud talk and threats and exclusion. No good will come of anything you do until you know why you do it and what effect it is likely to have on the character and behavior of this troublesome child.

Suppose he is failing in school. Get the teacher's view of the failure. Not the report card, but her personal, private opinion of the cause. The marks are a statement of the fact that the child did not learn his lesson so he could recite it or write it. It is not a report of the child as he lives day by day in the classroom. Get that. Then see the child specialist who has devoted his life to children's difficulties. Then, in conference and agreement with the teacher, the specialist and yourself, plan a new program of home and school work. Unless you change the conditions for the child the result must be the same.

Sending the troublesome child off to a school in the hope of curing him is not going to work. He will carry his weakness, his habits, his attitudes along with him, and unless the cause of the troublesome expressions has been found and steps taken to remedy it, he will continue to express the error that is at work in him. Sending him away may give you a respite and rest him up a bit, but it will not cure him.

A change of environment is often helpful to children who have failed. It offers them a new start. It changes the associations. This is an important factor in changing the children's behavior. It removes some of the influences that have been working against their good. BUT, it will not cure them. Spelling that is poor because of bad eyesight, improves when the poor vision is corrected. Irritable behavior, temper tantrums, disobedience amounting to defiance caused by indignation, vanish when the diet is changed. Whining and nagging and nagging for attention caused by a feeling of neglect disappear when the child is given acceptable occupation and assurances of affection. Only when the difficulty is traced to its roots can you send a child away with any hope of a cure. Change of place helps the treatment, but it is useless when there is a cause at work. Find the cause and it may not be necessary to send him away.

People Who Always Hunt For Sympathy

There Are Many Varieties of Those With Chronic Troubles.

By Elsie Robinson

FRANK SWINNERTON, has a name for them. They are, says he in Tokenfield Papers, "CARMICHAELS." Meaning what?

Elsie Robinson

Meaning those cussed creatures, male and female, young and old, who make a business of preying on our sympathy. "Their essential feature," says Mr. Swinnerton, "is the gift of being pathetic, thereby making us feel remorseful, hard and selfish."

Children who cannot play by themselves are CARMICHAELS. Older people who show feelings after our short non-letter-writing absence; all parents whose children dare not marry for fear of the gap left at home are CARMICHAELS. Destroying our peace of mind, the tyranny of the CARMICHAEL is incessant.

You could add scores to that list, out of your own circle of acquaintances, couldn't you? And with what gusto! There's the Peevish Mama who always gets her own way by reminding her children of all she's Sacrificed For Them... or telling her husband how she's given him "the best years of her youth"...

Or the Pouty Papa who makes a big bit with sympathetic sweeties by telling how misunderstood he is at home. "If I'd only met someone like you!"

Or the Domestic Martyr who "wears her fingers to the bone" for everyone, without receiving "a particle of consideration in return"—Or the Sensitive Soul, male, female or what-have-you, whose life is one long, agonizing series of snubs, slights, sinister plots and brutal attacks.

Or the General Nuisance who bores us all to tears with his endless recitals, but whom we dare not duck lest we be considered Heartless Monsters.

And we haven't even started! There are at least 333 other varieties of chronic sufferers who waste our time, squander our emotions and wreck our morale with their pity appeals, over everything from an ingrowing toenail to a race riot.

Often, indeed, there was genuine heartbreak in the beginning of their story. The death of some loved one. Betrayal by someone they trusted. Sickness. Some hideous accident or outrageous injustice which merits honest sympathy. But presently the Carmichael makes a pleasant discovery. The sob story, if sufficiently tragic, serves two purposes—it's a perfect alibi for cowardice, laziness and general cussedness... and it's a swell method of grabbing the spotlight and gratifying one's egotism.

For you can't expect a broken heart to act regular, or give him the bawling out he deserves when he doesn't act regular. Nor can you deny him the audience he demands. So, any way you look at it, the Carmichael's sitting pretty and you are the spot.

And nine times out of 10 we deserve to be on that spot. We are responsible for it, says Frank Swinnerton, "BECAUSE WE CANNOT SAY NO."

We know that the Carmichael is a ruthless animal who believes that HIS pain is greater than the pain of any other mortal. We know that he's having a swell time listening to his own bleats and burps and that he doesn't care a hoot what happens to anyone else, as long as he gets plenty of attention. Yet we haven't the gumption to kick him out. And why?

Is it because we're really soft-hearted, patient and filled with brotherly love? It is NOT! It's because we're spineless and conciliatory. Bored though we are, still it flatters our vanity to have the Carmichael appeal to US also, we cringe from the thought of what he'll say about us if we refuse to listen.

So the racket goes merrily on. And we continue to "maintain a public nuisance" which we could shut in 60 seconds if we had the spunk of a woodcock! (Copyright, 1935.)

GLADYS SWARTHOUT

By H. H. Niemeyer

HOLLYWOOD, July 31.

IN the dim distant past, we spent 10 years, one winter, in the thriving city of Clinton, Mo., trying to convince the 5000 other residents that what they needed most was a metropolitan newspaper. Our efforts extended as far as the nearby little town of Deep Water where we ultimately talked about a dozen citizens into becoming subscribers. Among those unfortunates—they subscribed for a whole year and our country gentlemen's newspaper folded up six months later—were the Swarthouts who had a little daughter said by the natives at the time to be as promising a singer as little Jane Frohman who lived in Clinton. They were right, too, as things turned out. Jane grew up to become a radio star and is now out here in Hollywood making her bow in motion pictures, while Gladys found fame in grand opera, on the air and also in the Flickerville to have her fling at the galloping celluloids along with Lily Pons, Grace Moore and the other song birds of the Metropolitan Opera House.

Whether or not the collapse of our publishing venture had anything to do with it or not is a question but when the Swarthouts discovered that their Clinton newspaper was missing from the daily mail box they packed up and moved to Kansas City, taking Gladys and her golden voice along.

When the child was 12 she gave a concert in her mother's home, tried for high C, missed it, got mad, had to be dragged back to the piano again and coaxed into trying once more. That time she made it. The other day Miss Swarthout told me that as she looks back through the years studded with sure progress from Deep Water concerts, to the Metropolitan Opera and motion pictures that she believes that first home performance was possibly the most important of her career.

"If it hadn't been for the help of friends," she said, "I probably wouldn't have had a career. But my earliest recollections are of watching my mother play the piano and trying to sing an accompaniment."

"I can't remember a time when I wasn't singing, or trying to sing. Possibly that is one of the reasons why I always tell ambitious young singers never to sing if they can do anything else. Those who succeed do so only because they are under the necessity—not merely the desire, but the absolute necessity—to express themselves through song, and in no other way. For only those compelled by this necessity are willing to pay the price of musical success."

Reminiscing between scenes of her first movie, the Paramount musical romance, "Rose of the Rancho," Miss Swarthout smilingly recalls the first money she ever earned. She had been studying, less than a year with a teacher who occasionally gave concerts of her own. One night the teacher caught cold and was unable to fill a concert engagement, and she dispatched young Gladys in her place. Gladys was paid $50 and expenses—and no sum paid her since then has seemed so great.

It should be remarked that Gladys, least of all people perhaps, never dreamed of becoming a grand opera singer. She had a musical education and all that, but her progress was one of acceptance rather than seeking. She was, in fact, greatly surprised when a Metropolitan contract was offered to her and her first sensation was that she was not ready for so important a step.

One of her chief qualities, though, is determination. Her desire to learn new jobs amounts almost to an obsession. That was her principal motive in signing a contract with Paramount calling for two pictures, with options for others. It was another step in her career, a new job, and it brought out in her the quality that Americans call "grit"—to use a word perhaps a bit more elegant than the Deep Water equivalent.

This determination, coupled with her compulsion to sing, quite likely led Gladys to her first steady job. Each Sunday she and her mother attended a Methodist church in Kansas City. The choir soloist had a nice voice, and Gladys admired it. But the singer had so affected a manner of holding her music that Gladys was irked.

"I told my mother I wished I could show that singer how to hold her music," Miss Swarthout continues. "Of course, I was not criticizing her voice, but I felt that her method of delivery detracted from her singing."

A few days later, 14-year-old Gladys Swarthout applied for the choir job. She knew she looked too young, but it only required a moment to pin up her girlish curls. She confessed that she announced herself as 19 years old. Her dark brown hair and eyes helped complete the illusion, and she was hired forthwith. She kept the post more than a year, singing religious songs that had been among her favorites ever since.

THE young choir singer began singing in Chicago, and the opportunity it held for musicians. In her early teens, then, Gladys found herself studying harmony, theory and singing at the Rush Conservatory and earning money as a soloist in a church at

MY EARLIEST RECOLLECTIONS ARE OF WATCHING MY MOTHER PLAY THE PIANO AND TRYING TO SING AN ACCOMPANIMENT

Oak Park, and later at a church in Evanston.

Some of her listeners began to say that Gladys should try singing in theaters, and finally the Balaban & Katz circuit, one of the largest in the Midwest, said the same thing in the form of a contract.

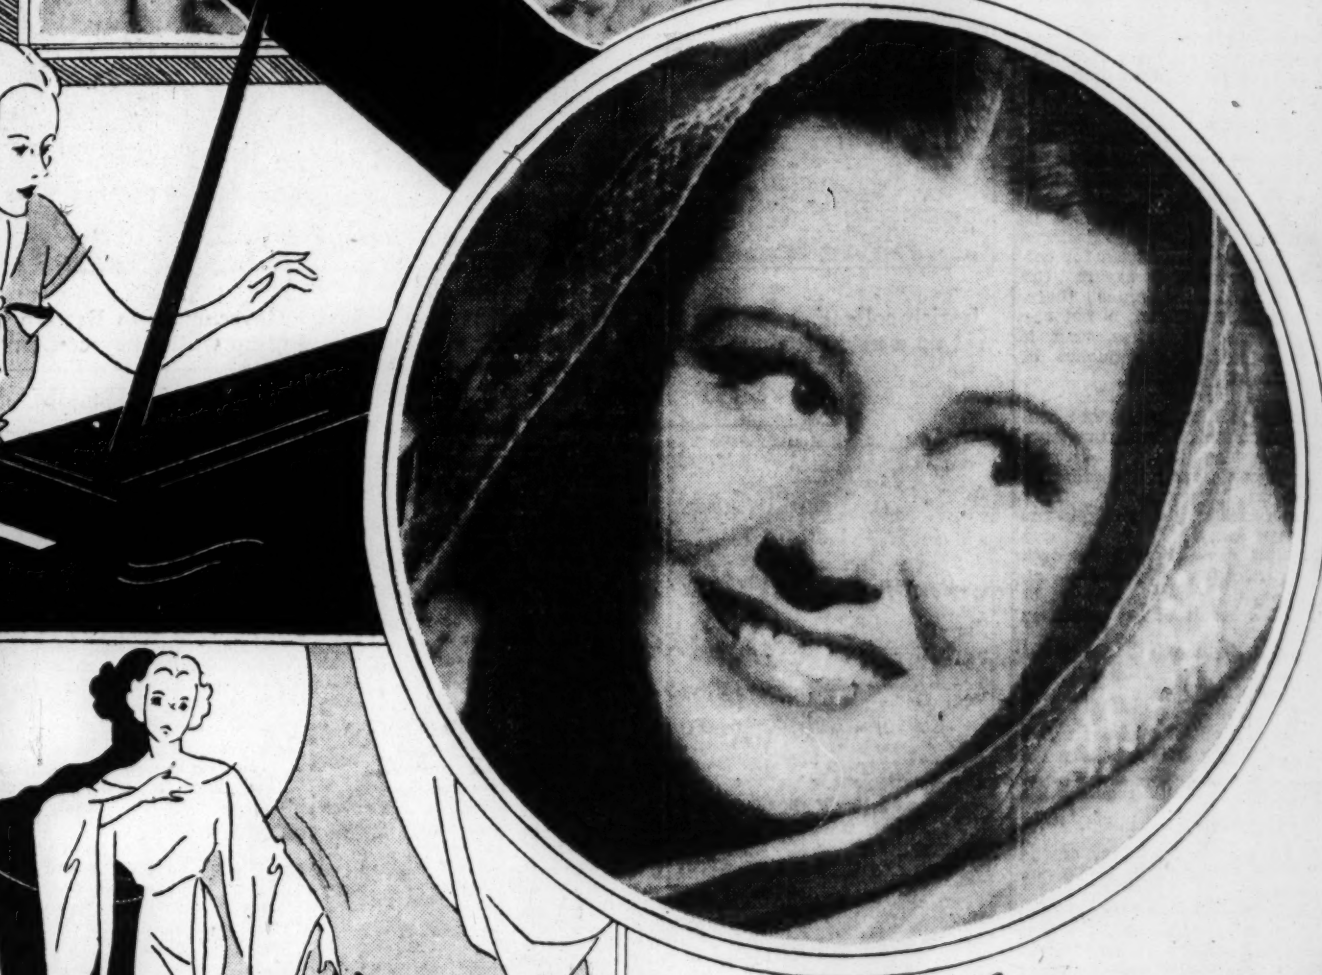

Another of the girl singer's unforgettable memories was her first appearance on a stage—really her first "professional" singing. It was at a big first motion picture picture in Chicago. The orchestra leader was Nathan Finston, now head of the Paramount studio music department. Thus it remained for Finston to assist measurably both in Miss Swarthout's first theater singing, and her first motion picture singing. They laugh together now about the night when Gladys made her initial bow at the theater; she declares she was so nervous that she might have fainted had it not been for Finston's confidence in her and the competent way he led her through the songs.

Thereafter Gladys interspersed her studies with a lengthy theatrical tour in the Middle West. Her successes still did not turn her eyes toward the "Met," but it did bring her another opportunity. She agreed to sing an extremely difficult aria, the Max Bruch "Ave Maria," from "The Cross of Fire," with the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra. She acquitted herself so well that offers of concert engagements began reaching her from all directions.

Friends insisted that the Chicago Civic Opera would do well to include Gladys Swarthout's rich mezzo-soprano among its repository of voices, somewhat to her own surprise. The truth was, she had even considered opera at all, and when the friends insisted that she make an audition she protested that she did not know one complete operatic role. Nevertheless the audition was made, and Gladys found herself, unbelievably, a full-fledged member of the Chicago Opera.

GLADYS SWARTHOUT

SHE WAS SO NERVOUS DURING HER FIRST STAGE APPEARANCE SHE DECLARED SHE MIGHT HAVE FAILED HAD IT NOT BEEN FOR THE COMPETENT WAY THE ORCHESTRA LEADER LED HER THROUGH HER SONGS

quick succession. Her third season is remembered chiefly for her appearance as Preziosilla in "Forza del Destino." She won new fame in a revival of "Lakme" in her fourth year and in her fifth she created the role of Plentiful Twiki in "Merry Mount," also portraying Pierrotto in "Linda di Chamounix."

Other worlds beside that of the opera began to hear of young Gladys Swarthout. After her first season, she was offered a five-year contract by a major film studio, but she refused.

It was three years before Gladys even considered accepting radio offers. Her first microphone appearance was as a guest artist in 1933. The following year she was two sponsored hours and ultimately she became a featured artist. She kept up weekly appearances until she came to Hollywood this summer. Her future radio plans are indefinite as yet, but she is excited enough about Hollywood to want to remain in pictures provided she can still take time off for the usual 14 weeks' season at the Metropolitan.

One of the most exciting experiences of her life occurred in her second year at the Metropolitan. With only two days' notice she was called upon to sing "Adalgisa" in the opera "Norma," one of the most difficult roles in the mezzo-soprano repertoire. The "Met" company opened in Cleveland, where Gladys appeared before an audience of 12,000 without a rehearsal. This, the largest audience before which grand opera is regularly sung, gave her one of the greatest ovations a singer ever received. Whereupon she climaxed her performance by appearing the very next day as Mrs. Dean in "Peter Ibbetson," likewise without a rehearsal.

New roles followed one another in "Cio-cio-san." But hers was not a glamorous role in keeping with her voice and figure. She entered that historic stage for the first time in the character of "The Blind Mother," garbed in ugly make-up and shapless robes. But she sang gloriously, they said—and her future as one of the operatic greats was a foregone conclusion. Gatti-Casazza and the maestro of the Metropolitan proceeded to cast her for more roles than any other singer, duplicating her experience at the Chicago Opera.

In her first season she laid the foundation for her nickname as "the best boy the Metropolitan ever had." Her first boy role was that

IF YOU ASK My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

My dear Mrs. Carr:

RECENTLY I visited a young man in another city, some distance from St. Louis. I took the train there and back and, because he had no relatives I stayed at a hotel. He was very courteous to me and paid all the expenses while I was there. When I returned, he insisted that he pay my train fare and hotel bill. I didn't argue, but sent the money back when I returned.

Now he has sent it again to me and seems a little hurt. He said he had invited me and felt it was his obligation and would not have it any other way. He said it was proper for him to do this. Is it, Mrs. Carr? Now, I don't know what to say or do. MISS G.

It was out of the usual for you to go to another town to visit a young man, even your fiancé, unless his business is such that he could get away and come to see you. Of course, the expense of entertainment was his, naturally. But it was neither proper nor conventional for him to pay your train fare or hotel bill. You should have declined it positively and definitely when he spoke of it, saying that while you appreciated it and would not for anything hurt his feelings, you felt you could not accept it and you really could not argue it. There is, and was not, any reason for his feelings to be hurt; it is just a matter for convention for your protection for which neither you nor he is responsible, but one which cannot be ignored.

It would seem foolish, perhaps to return this again. When you next see him, tell him you would be happier if he would allow you to return it. If he refuses, drop the matter, but do not allow it to happen again.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM a girl 18 years old. I can never have a good time anywhere I go. I can dance and sing and play all kinds of sports. But there is one trouble which makes everyone stare at me. My nose has to be straightened and my mother will not let me mention an operation. She said it is a very dangerous one. Would you please let me know of a doctor who has performed this operation, or does one of your readers know?

Mrs. Carr, if you only knew how hurt I feel about it, because no one cares to go out with me.

SUICIDE.

To one who has a defect of this kind it is always exaggerated. Have you thought that perhaps people who look at you steadily sometimes are not even thinking about your nose and that, possibly, what you think is your lack of popularity, may be from some other cause, at least partly?

I must tell you that some of the most famous and popular women in history were extremely homely. Because of this, they made every effort to cultivate their minds and talents, and in attractiveness they far surpassed many of their beautiful friends.

This operation has been done successfully, but even then there is the best surgeons there is a chance that it may not turn out quite perfectly. St. Louis has one of the best plastic surgeons in the country. Probably if you ask at any of the hospitals, St. Lukes, St. Mary's, Barnes, Barnard, they would give you his name or tell you of a reliable diagnostician who would advise you.

Dear Mrs. Carr: We are two girls, 13 years old, and would like for you to suggest something for us to do for pastime during the rest of the summer. One of us has a sore arm and cannot use it or get it wet.

MISS AND DOT.

There are so many public recreation places open in the city you could take advantage of this during the summer season. You will find a list of these in the Social Service Directory at the office of the Community Council, 613 Locust street. If you just want suggestions for special lines of work or entertainment, you can get a booklet at the same place, "Adventures in Spare Time," which is most interesting and helpful.

If you care for some games or some interesting and diverting work, write me, sending self-addressed, stamped envelope, for my "Occupations for Women." Some of these would interest girls your age. I will inclose games too, if you care to tell me what you like and for what occasions these may be intended.

Dear Mrs. Carr: NOW old must a man be to obtain a marriage license? Please answer letter as soon as possible as my sweetheart wants to be married the first week in August.

IRVIN.

A young man must be 21 years old to marry in Missouri. For details call the Marriage License Clerk, City Hall.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

FOR the past four weeks we have had a house guest who invited herself to spend a few days with us. We are getting very bored with her presence and wish she would go home. Please tell us how we can get rid of her without greatly offending her. THE 3-G's.

Doesn't your guest room or the room in which she has "settled down" need some repairs or overhauling? Casually mention that you are going to have this done at a certain time and regret that it must deprive you of a longer visit from her. Or, perhaps, you can arrange a summer outing or an imagined one, when you are to close the house. Possibly you could even invent another guest who will arrive in a short time, adding, "Sorry we haven't another room we could offer you."

Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Dear Mrs. Carr: I AM a constant reader of your column although just 13. I saw "C. H. F." letter. I think there is nothing better than to have a friend to confide in and whom you can feel will not tell what you say as soon as your back is turned. I'm only a child and don't have many serious secrets; but I don't believe I could do without my friend who is indeed trustworthy. I just want to say there are others in the world who enjoy and appreciate a friend.

M. C.

CAN you tell me of some good children's game, simple ones which may be played out of doors in the afternoon—not too strenuous—for children about 7 and 8 years old? YOUNG MOTHER.

I have some very good games for children of this age, which I shall be glad to forward to you; if you will send self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Controversial Topics About Contract Play

By P. Hal Sims

I DON'T know about Wichita, but I do know that in New York and Asbury Park it is a rare day in June that an injured player does not claim at the top of his lungs, "I'll leave it to any ten experts—any ten. You name them."

After some argument as to where the bidding started and the distribution of the various experts around the table, South (the injured party) announced the following bidding:

South shifted to the deuce of hearts. The nine spot is put on from the board. The question is whether North covers. If South plays the eight of hearts, does it make any difference in North's play?

The way South analyzed it—and a very fine analysis it held go up North, who in the actual play of the hand ducked the trick, must realize that South will never lead into the teeth of that heart suit unless he has the ace. He will lead clubs. South was amazed that one tournament champion said he'd go up if the eight spot was led, duck if the deuce was played. Eight spot or deuce, South maintains that the North player must be consistent.

The deuce play, which South prefers, gives North a count on the hand.

Let me interpolate the remark that I have given the actual bidding with a shudder. In my mind, it has nothing whatsoever to recommend it.

The next problem South put before the assembled company was this:

The bidding: South East West
Pass Pass 1 D Pass
1 H 1 S Dbl Pass
Pass Pass 2 N T 3 S
Pass Pass Dbl Pass

South's hand: S. A. 10 8 7 D. A. 9 7 6 H. A. 6 C. 7
South opened a low diamond, and the opponents made two no trumps, dummy going down with: S. J. 9 D. K. 10 5 4 H. 8 C. J. 10 8 5 3

A heart opening would have set the contract at least two tricks, perhaps three. But South can't be convinced that his proper opening was the ace and another heart.

I agree with South that the heart lead has little to recommend it; but where South erred was in not passing one no trump. South's double of one spade is all that his hand warrants. Let him pass the one no trump around to North. If North doubles, South can open hearts confidently. And North will double, holding:

S. 4 3 2 H. K. Q 10 7 6 D. 2 C. A. 4 2

Public Enemies

THE INSIDE STORY OF THE GOVERNMENT'S WAR ON CRIMINALS

By Courtney Ryley Cooper

CHAPTER SIXTEEN.

THE Nashes continued to like New York. They rented an apartment near Ninety-third street and Broadway and remained here some months. Meanwhile, their old friends were somewhat scattered. There had been a big bank robbery in Flinders, S. D., with a tremendous amount of publicity attendant upon its exciting features. The Barker-Karpis crowd had been suspected; the gang now had grown to include several other young men, including Russell Gibson, a graduate of Missouri State Penitentiary; Jess Doyle, from Kansas State Penitentiary; and Volney Davis, a friend of Verne Miller. So, in view of the unfavorable newspaper items, the entire entourage had gone to Reno, Nev. The visit lasted about two months, until pursuit seemed to have quieted. Then everybody came back East, just about the time that Frank Nash and his woman and Verne Miller headed West. They all met at Big Louie's place, out at Fox River Grove.

Shortly after this Verne went to Kansas City and rented a bungalow. Only a few days following, the Barker-Karpis crowd, plus Eddie Green, who had happened along, and Frank Nash, started out to pay him a visit, with a stop-over at Fairbury, Neb., where the First National Bank lost $25,000 in cash and $100,000 in securities. There was shooting during the get-away. Earl Christman, graduated at last to bank robbery, gasped spasmodically as the machine gunned the outlaws, careened out of town and started for Kansas City. The chase was a determined one; the men were forced to take the "cat" or unfrequented roads. There was no chance to reach a hoodlum doctor. Then Christman's chest wound became infected and soon he was dead. Somewhere between Fairbury, Neb., and Kansas City, the car pulled off into wooded territory. There, in the gleam of the headlights, the bandits dug a shallow grave, pushed in the body, stiff with rigor mortis, and covered it.

Naturally, one may wonder where the special agents were spending their time, during all these periods of momentum. They were pursuing their usual relentless course—asking questions, checking telephone calls, hurrying to apartments, which they reached too late. Among other things, they strove to watch the sales of all motor-car companies in the vicinity of Chicago, with an eye especially directed at Cicero. Finally they learned that a Plymouth car had been purchased by a person who had given his name as George W. Miller.

They had heard that name before, nor did they confuse it with that of Verne Miller. During the months in which they had traced Louie's, then, like the scattering of quail, they were all away again, and this time for big plans. Bailey was tired of being in Lansing prison. If they only had guns, ammunition and a hideout, Lansing could not hold them.

While this was being considered, Frank Nash and Frances were again on the move. They went to Hot Springs, Ark., where another little sentimentality developed. There they were married, becoming

RICHARD TALLMAN GALATAS and his wife, ELIZABETH, at the time of their arrest.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Miller, this in spite of the fact that Frank Nash already had a wife; the first spouse claimed his "ody after his death. Once married, they celebrated by another dip into social pleasures. In this they were aided by the good-looking, almost distinguished-looking, confident man, Mr. Richard Galatas.

Galatas had given up his garage now and was devoting himself, as he expressed it, entirely to gambling, owning a race-track handbook in a soft-drink emporium which sold liquor and was known as the White Front. Frank Nash and Galatas were seen together often. Soon afterward Frank took a business trip into Oklahoma.

All this time several members of the Barker-Karpis crowd were in the vicinity of Kansas State Penitentiary at Lansing. However, even business could not halt a romance. Fred Barker had remembered the old days down at Herb Farmer's and Paula, the wife of the bank robber, whom he had met there.

The Verne Millers now were truly settled in Kansas City. They had taken a house at No. 6612 Edgevale road, in an excellent neighborhood. Vi had her child with her—the little girl was taking dancing lessons and doing very well. Vi belonged to one country club where she often played bridge. Verne Miller—all this accomplished under false names—belonged to another. Alvin Karpis stopped at intervals, although he was not enthusiastically welcomed. Freddie Barker was there often, except when he and Alvin had to hurry into Kansas to "see a fellow about some arrangements they were making." One day, as he lolled over a bottle of beer, Freddie's features broke into a gold-toothed grin as he asked: "Say, whatever became of that Paula Harmon?"

Verne called his woman, "Vi, telephone Paula Harmon, down in Fort Arthur, Tex. Tell her Fred's asking about her."

The call was made. Paula Harmon took an airplane out of Texas that very afternoon. By the next night she had arrived in Kansas City and became Freddie Barker's woman.

Intrigue moved swiftly these days. Down in Hot Springs, Frank Nash took various trips over into old haunts, and to various hideouts around Picher, Ok. He was successful with his plans. A telegram denoting his efficiency later was sent to inform Hazel Hudson, nee Jarrett, sister of the Jarrett outlaw gang, that her sweetheart, Wilbur Underhill, soon would be free again. It read:

"Will cut hay on thirtieth. Have purchased six cows for delivery at Picher."

The "cows" were Harvey Bailey, Wilbur Underhill, and four other life-termers. The "hay" was a prison escape, the "thirtieth" Declaration Day, 1933. During the interim before this date arrived, Richard Galatas, who still only dined about the edge of real crookdom, heard a disquieting rumor. A confidence-man friend warned him that Frank Nash had money; some of it was tucked away in a safety-deposit box under an assumed name; still more he kept in his home. The rumor insisted that Frank Nash intended to kidnap his gambler friend for that money.

On that morning of the "thirtieth" there was a ball game in the yard of Lansing State Penitentiary. The fourth inning was on, between the American Legion teams of Topeka and Leavenworth. The score was 2 to 2. Excitement was tense—suddenly there came a greater thrill. Six of the most dangerous convicts in the prison—the six "cows" mentioned in that telegram—surrounded the Warden, Kirk Prather. They threw a looped wire over his head, binding him. Guns appeared from beneath convict uniforms. In the tower turrets, the guards, attempting to shoot, found that the Warden had been shoved forward in such a manner as to expose him to any gunfire. Then a command sounded—the voice of Harvey Bailey, backed by that of Wilbur Underhill: "Throw down your keys. And let down a rope and ladder!" Eleven convicts later went over the wall, taking the Warden and a guard with them. There was shooting; Harvey Bailey was wounded in the calf of his right leg, but he kept on going. The usual day of horror followed, wounded guards, stolen cars, kidnaped hostages, frightened farmers robbed of their automobiles and left stranded on country roads. For three of the convicts, there was a quick recapture. Unaided from without, with no place to go, freedom meant only misfortune. For the six, however, everything had been planned by the same methods which had been used in the Leavenworth crush-out. The car, containing them, sped onward toward the Oklahoma line, where the Warden and guard were set out on a lonely stretch of road and told to walk back without watching the car. Then the bandits traveled onward, to their previous arranged hide-out. There all but Bailey vanished from this story; a long chase resulted in either death or capture for all but one of them. Harvey Bailey, however, must remain.

The old rule to move when the heat was on now hit Frank Nash. Away he went, in that Plymouth car, with Mrs. Nash, for a belated honeymoon. In that there was disappointment for hard-working Special Agents; they traced the car to Hot Springs only a few days after his departure.

Again a wandering journey ensued, finally leading to St. Paul. The Barker-Karpis boys had gone there also and a get-together meeting followed. Frank and Frances stayed over night at the Barker-Karpis apartment. Paula made the visit quite homelike. Now, with the crowd all hot again, there was movement and hiding. But at last the newspapers ceased printing front-page stories about the Lansing break. Frank Nash and Frances headed back to Hot Springs. That was dangerous. A lone special agent, in taking his occupational disguise, had learned from various members of the "sporting element" that Hot Springs was a favorite resting place for Frank Nash, and that sooner or later he would return.

SO NOW, watchful eyes which had waited long caught sight of that Plymouth car and checked the license plates. A hurried call for aid was shot into Oklahoma City, where a special agent in charge made arrangements for capture. There were three officers in the party: Otto Reed, Chief of Police at McAlester, Ok., who had known Frank Nash in the old days, and F. J. Lackey and Frank Smith, special agents. They found Frank Nash drinking a glass of beer at the White Front. Guns drawn, they handcuffed him and put him into their car. The long chase was over. But underworld intrigue had only begun.

The car shot out of Hot Springs, leaving turmoil behind it. Immediately word had gone through town that there had been a raid by Federal officers and that Frank Nash had been picked up. Hot Springs, which heretofore had been so cool and enjoyable, suddenly began to burn up. Confidence men began packing their belongings. Big-time crooks, there to take the baths, decided to go elsewhere. A gambler who knew Dick Galatas thus described the scene to me: "The con guys were going out like coveys of quail in front of a bird dog. Nobody knew what was going to happen—everybody thought he was next in line for the Federal dicks. It about drove Galatas crazy. He paced up and down, running his hands through his hair and exclaiming that the Federals had ruined his town."

"I had it in the hollow of my hand," he said. "Now look at it!"

Brief Outlines Of the Movies For the Week

Feature in Technicolor at Local Theater—New Musical Comedy.

THE musical comedy, "Broadway Gondolier," with Dick Powell, Joan Blondell and Adolphe Menjou, comes to the Orpheum Theater tomorrow. Based on an original story by Sig Herzig, E. Y. Harburg and Hans Kraly, "Broadway Gondolier" concerns the romance of a New York taxicab driver (Powell) who aspires to be a singer, who meets and falls in love with the secretary to the president of a large broadcasting company and so arranges for a radio audition but is unable to get a proper try-out. He goes to Venice with his voice teacher (Menjou) and gets a job as gondolier. There he is discovered by a radio advertiser (Louise Fazenda) who puts him on her program. There follows a successful conclusion to the romance with the secretary (Joan Blondell). A feature of the picture is a complete radio program with Powell, Miss Blondell, Menjou, Ted Fio Ritta and his band, the Four Mills Brothers and the Canova family. The song numbers, by Al Dubin and Harry Warren, include "Outside of You," "Lonely Gondolier," "A Rose in Her Hair," "You Can Be Kissed" and "Lulu's Back in Town." Powell, in preparation for his role, took lessons in taxicab driving from a Los Angeles driver. His gondola work was all done in a big lake on the Warner Bros. lot, where a Venetian scene was reproduced.

BEGINNING today, the Missouri Theater offers "Lady Tubbs," a comedy with Alice Brady, Douglas Montgomery and Anita Louise, and "Hard Rock Harrigan," with George O'Brien and Irene Hervey. In "Lady Tubbs," Miss Brady is seen as the cook for a railroad construction camp in Kansas, and greatly interested in a niece who is in love with the son of a wealthy and snobbish family. Suddenly, the cook, "Mom," inherits a fortune in England and is forced to go abroad for six months to establish her claims. She comes back to America under the fictitious name of "Lady Tubbs" and is invited to the home of the snobbish family, the Ash-Orcuts. How she furthers her niece's romance and one of her own provides the merriest of the show. In "Hard Rock Harrigan," O'Brien is the boss of a band of tunnel men who are building an aqueduct under a mountain.

IN "WOMAN WANTED," which comes to Loew's tomorrow, Maureen O'Sullivan takes the role of a young woman unjustly convicted of murder. She escapes from cus-today after the trial and she and an attorney, Joel McCrea, set out to find the real killer. They have to dodge both the police and criminals. The entire action takes place in a period of eight hours, from late afternoon until the next morning. The supporting cast includes Lewis Stone, Adrienne Ames, Edward Kennedy and Louis Calhern.

"BECKY SHARP," full-length feature in the new Technicolor, and "One Frightened Night," story of an eccentric millionaire and relatives who are after his fortune, opened at the Fox Theater yesterday and will continue through next week. In the cast of the first picture are Miriam Hopkins, Frances Dee, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Billie Burke, Alison Skipworth, Allan Mowbray and others. "One Frightened Night" features Charles Grapewin, Mary Carlisle and Arthur Hohl.

Willy Nilly and His Two Friends
Enjoy the Water

By Mary Graham Bonner

"FLASH, splash, quack, quack, quack," Willy Nilly agreed. "It is delicious. Just come in for a paddle, Willy Nilly!" Mrs. Duck was enjoying her swim so much.

"I do believe I will take off my shoes and stockings and do a bit of wading," Willy Nilly agreed. Even Christopher's beak was in the water as he saw a very small but a very tasty breakfast swimming around!

"It is lovely and cool," Willy Nilly agreed as he waded into the pond. "Ah," sighed Mrs. Duck happily. "I am glad you're enjoying it. I would have felt selfish if you hadn't come in, for then I would have felt I might be delaying you. As it is now, I feel you'll be all the more refreshed by this little rest and paddle."

She ducked her head, she glided through the water, she nibbled at things to eat.

"It's almost time to be on the way again," said Willy Nilly.

"Almost, quack, quack," agreed Mrs. Quacko. "but not quite. One or two turns around the pond and then we'll get out of the water, eh?"

"All right," agreed Willy Nilly. "How would you like me to sit on your shoulder and wave this Willy leaf over your head? It will cool you off, I think, so you'll be as fit as can be for the rest of the drive."

"Not a bad idea," said Willy Nilly. And Mrs. Quacko got on his shoulders and cooled his head with a wet water Willy leaf.

"Come along now," said Christopher Columbus Crow. "You've been in the pond long enough, Mrs. Quacko. You're just thinking up excuses to stay longer!"

absolute control, and the guns will be well placed. Darger should have been an army general."

"What did Mira say as his tribesmen were going to do if they saw the goddess?" Troy asked reluctantly.

"Mira told Darger that when they saw the goddess, when she came, they would go into the temple with her. She will bring glory back to the tribe. They will come into their own once more."

"And all Darger wants to know is where the temple is?"

"Where the temple is, with the goddess," From Cavanagh. "He thinks the temple is in the depths of Tiva—near the altar."

"He doesn't care what happens to Lillis," Troy's face didn't lift to a question. It was a statement.

"He doesn't care what happens to anyone."

What Else Is an Army For?

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

WE have to thank Signore Mussolini for laying all his cards on the table before he kicks the dealer in the face.

He wants to fight like the Duce. He is as earnest as a bottle blower trying to make a quart flask out of a pint. He is as frank as a police precinct matron on a Tuesday morning. The Signore wants to fight the Ethiopians. Reason not stated.

No reason needed. The Duce just wants to step forth into Dark-est Africa and brighten up the Abyssinian corner. He thinks it is about time he won a war.

This will be the war to end all wars like Post Office is the game to end all parlor games.

The fight starts when the rainy season ends. Probably the Ethiopians can fool Benito by walking around the next five years under self-sprinkling umbrellas.
